DORSEY WILL ASK DEATH SENTENCE FOR FRANK TODAY

Although Supreme Court Mandate Has Not Yet Been Handed Down, He Will Present Habeas Corpus Writ.

NO LEGAL OBSTACLES NOW EXIST, HE SAYS

Defense Is Expected to Contest Plea, Holding That Sentence Cannot Be Passed Until Mandate Arrives.

Although the mandate of the United States supreme court, which recently refused to interfere in the Leo M. Frank case, has not yet reached Atlanta, Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey will appear before Judge Ben Hill this morning and ask that the prisoner be ordered before the court to be resentenced without further delay.

Judge Hill's decision is expected to establish a precedent, since he will have to pass on the question of the right of the state to resentence a prisoner legally notified by the highest court in the land.

When it was learned last night that the proposed action would be taken, Dorsey stated that it was solely an effort to prevent delay, and that he intended submitting to Judge Hill the proposition of deciding whether or not it was legally necessary to await the supreme court mandate.

Defense Will Contest.

Dorsey's plea will, it is stated, be contested by the defense, who will argue that the habeas corpus writ—which will bring Frank before Judge Hill for process of resentence—should not be granted until official notification of the supreme court's decision has been received in the forthcoming mandate, which is due May 20.

Judge Hill stated last night he had not heard of the proposed plea.

In event the habeas corpus writ is granted, Frank will be carried to the courthouse within twelve hours, brought before Judge Hill and resentenced to die within a period of not exceeding forty days, or less than twenty. It will be the fourth time that his death date has been fixed. Three times it has been set, only to be suspended for further action of the various courts through which it has been carried.

No Legal Obstacles.

The plea for habeas corpus will contain a brief summary of the court actions upon the Frank case, and the allegation that there now exists, all supersending orders entered in the case having been dissolved, no legal obstacle to the execution of the sentence passed by Judge L. S. Roan, August 26, 1913.

The prayer of the solicitor will read in this form:

"That the court grant the state's writ of habeas corpus, directed to C. W. Mangum, sheriff, commanding and requiring him to produce the person of Leo M. Frank, before the court at such time as to the court seems meet and proper, to the end that the date of the execution of the sentence heretofore passed by the court may be reset and the judgment of the court carried out."

LEE JURY WILL PROBE OLIVER MURDER TODAY

Detectives Working for Reward and Sensational Developments Are Expected.

Americus, Ga., May 2.—(Special.)—The recent assassination of Banker A. D. Oliver, at Leesburg, will be the command thorough investigation at the hands of the Lee county grand jury, which assembles tomorrow morning.

Solicitor General James R. Williams states that the murder of Oliver by unknown assassins will be thoroughly probed and nothing left undone in locating the murderers who shot him dead in the darkness on the streets of Leesburg and then fled to safety.

Inspired by the reward of $500 offered by the governor for the apprehension of Oliver's murderers, detectives have been at work upon the case, and sensational developments would not be surprising when the grand jury begins its investigation.

PATRONS OF OPERA PREVENT ROBBERY OF BUCKNELL HOME

Neighbors returning home from the grand opera about 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning thwarted the burglarizing of Dr. Howard Bucknell's residence at 142 Peachtree road by the prompt hailing of passing patrolmen.

Officers Davis and Vaughn leaped from their wheels to find three negroes attempting, it is reported, to force an entrance to Dr. Bucknell's home by forcing the grating of a rear window of the basement.

When taken to the police station they gave their names as Tom King, age 1136 Peachtree; Noel Jackson, rear 9 Kimball, and Monroe Thomas, rear 1145 Peachtree. They are being held under charges of suspicion.

Tabernacle Made Nursery For Day; Enroll 200 Babies

World Record Established by Boy Whose Name Was Inscribed on Roll When He Was 5 Minutes Old.

Transforming the Baptist Tabernacle into a veritable nursery, the Sunday school officers Sunday morning established a new record by enrolling 200 fine baby boys and girls on the Cradle roll. The babies, all under 3 years of age and attired in their best bib and tucker, were accompanied by their fond parents.

One little fellow, Alonzo Melvin Smith, Jr., the son of Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Smith, lay in his mother's arms and cooed at the 1,000 persons at the meeting, thoroughly unconscious of the fact that he had established a world's record. He joined the Sunday school by having his name inscribed on the Cradle roll when he was but five minutes old. His father is the active superintendent of the primary department of the Tabernacle Sunday school.

The Cradle roll of 1915 was also made memorable by the fact that when Catherine Lucile Williams, 19 months old, received her certificate, four members of her family, representing four generations, are now active members of the Sunday school. The baby, her mother, Mrs. F. A. Williams; the grandmother, Mrs. W. D. Brewer, and the great-grandmother, Mrs. T. C. Jackson, all sat on the platform beside Superintendent Dr. Joseph Broughton.

The exercises attendant upon the enrollment of the babies on the Cradle roll were considered by all the most unusual in the history of the Tabernacle. The Sunday school room was tastefully decorated for the occasion. Above the desk of Superintendent Broughton was a cradle bearing upon its sides the names and addresses of all the enrolled infants. Each mother jealous of the future welfare of her child pledged to train him properly and to keep his name on the Sunday school roll. The grownups marveled at the order preserved by the little tots, who were apparently overwhelmed by the commotion made over them.

POLICE RECOVER STOLEN MACHINE AFTER LONG CHASE

Officers Harper and Dalley had an exciting chase in an automobile Sunday afternoon after an alleged auto thief who was driving the Overland machine of Dr. M. Klausman, of 165 East North avenue.

Dr. Klausman's machine, a five-passenger, model 1915, Overland, disappeared from its stand in front of the Atlanta National bank building about noon Sunday while Dr. Klausman was in his office in that building.

From a description of the auto Officers Harper and Dalley identified it in "Brooklyn," a negro settlement. Four negroes were "joy riding" in it.

The officers hailed a passing machine, and jumping into it, they pursued the stolen machine from Brooklyn to Marietta street. A wild and exciting chase ensued.

At Broad street the negroes sought to dodge their pursuers, but the smaller car, in which the officers were riding, took the curve into Broad street in better style with the result that the larger machine was overtaken on the Broad street viaduct.

All four negroes were placed under arrest, and the driver, named John Henry, age 18, was held under a charge of larceny, bond $500.

WOMAN MEETS DEATH WHILE LIGHTING FIRE WITH KEROSENE OIL

Maysville, Ga., May 2.—(Special.)—Mrs. James D. Looney was burned to death this morning while kindling a fire at her home near Drypond, in Jackson county. While stooping over the flames with a bottle of kerosene in her hand the kerosene exploded, scattering the burning fluid over her clothing. She was dead before assistance reached her.

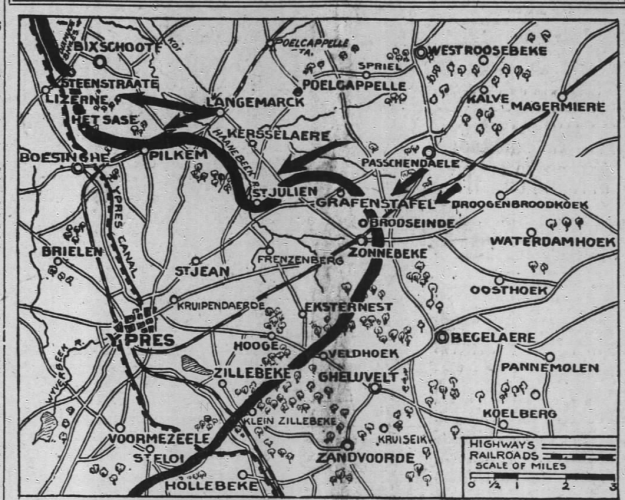
Calais Is Goal for Which the Germans Aim



ARROWS INDICATE POINTS OF ATTACK IN GERMAN CAMPAIGN AGAINST YPRES.

Although official accounts of the progress of the fighting near Ypres are contradictory in some respects, it would appear that the German offensive north of that city which resulted in their recent gain of nearly three miles, had reached its limit for the time being. Apparently the Germans hold most of the ground they gained, and the question is now whether they have sufficiently consolidated the new line to retain it. The German rush over, the British troops are now said to have taken the offensive and to be striking toward St. Julien, which the Germans captured, while the French on the British left say they have not only pushed the Germans from Lizerne, their new lodgment on the west bank of the canal, but have also crossed the canal and retaken Het Sas, on the east bank. A Belgian official report tells of the repulse of three German attacks south of Dixmude, which indicates that the German statement that their advance was made over a front extending from Ypres to Dixmude was accurate. The German official communication records no new progress for the German troops. It admits that the British took the offensive toward St. Julien, but insists that the successive attacks broke down.

STEADY IMPROVEMENT NOTED IN BUSINESS

By Agents of Federal Reserve Board—Increased Activity in Atlanta District.

Washington, May 2.—General improvement in business conditions with "returning confidence" is announced today in the federal reserve board's digest of reports of agents in the twelve reserve districts into which the country is divided. Development of considerable activity in certain industries in connection with the war are pointed out.

"Improving conditions and promise of continued betterment" is in the summary of reports from the Richmond district. Progress is still retarded by war conditions. There is decided improvement in cotton prices, with confidence in the future. Cotton milling is prosperous. Shortage of dyestuffs is causing some uneasiness.

The Atlanta District.

The Atlanta district report indicates "increased activity of sound and conservative nature in all lines," though no remarkable improvement. Increased railroad, hotel and postal receipts reflect cotton trade advance and growth of confidence. "Industrial and manufacturing interests," the report says, "are again on a normal basis, and conditions are improving in all trade lines."

Steady and conservative increase is reported for retail trade in the larger cities of the Dallas district. "The feeling through the entire business, agricultural and live stock section is encouraging," adds the report. "Cotton and cotton seed products show an increased demand and satisfactory prices. All emergency currency is expected to be relief before May."

Optimism in New York.

The announcement says that in the New York district general improvement with optimism in New York city is noted. Slight improvement is reported from Boston and improvement in some lines is claimed for Philadelphia.

In Cleveland the metal trade has been stimulated by foreign orders. The Chicago district shows improvement especially in lines profiting by war orders.

The St. Louis, Kansas City and Minneapolis conditions are improving on prospects of good crops. San Francisco reports prospects as exceedingly good.

The federal reserve board today inaugurated the publication of a monthly "federal reserve bulletin." Its purpose, it announces, is to afford a general statement concerning business conditions, federal reserve affairs and other matters of interest to banks and the public.

LIQUOR IN ATLANTA RAPPED IN SERMON BY DR. HOLDERBY

That Atlanta is not only permitting stumbling blocks to remain in the way of her own people, but is responsible for drunkenness and lawlessness in other communities and is a continual menace to smaller towns of the state, was the statement of Dr. A. R. Holderby, who preached on "Stumbling Blocks" at the Presbyterian gospel tent, in East Point, Sunday morning.

"Every possible effort was made by the devil to defeat the objects of the recent revival meetings in Atlanta," said Dr. Holderby, "and the devil is hard at work now to defeat the work of the church. The locker clubs selling whisky in open violation of the law, the beer saloons licensed by the vote of church members and every other institution violating the laws are so many stumbling blocks thrown by the devil in the way of the church's progress.

"But the shame of the thing is that Atlanta is not only permitting these stumbling blocks to stand in the way of her own people, but she is responsible for the drunkenness and lawlessness in other communities.

East Point, as far as I know, is a decent, moral town, but conditions in Atlanta are a continual menace to the smaller towns in the state.

"Every town in the state is looking to Atlanta and is controlled by the example of Atlanta."

ALL CLUBS CLOSED TIGHT ON SUNDAY; BEAVERS PLEASED

Police Chief Beavers' detectives were on the trail of Sunday liquor at the locker clubs yesterday. Practically every club in the city was visited, and Chief Beavers has expressed his delight at finding that all the locker clubs, from the highest to the humblest, had complied with his wishes that they do not dispense intoxicants on Sunday to their members."

"My men have not made their official report to me," said Chief Beavers last night, "but I understand that every locker club has complied with my request. I sent my men around today just to find out if any of the clubs might be violating the tippling house law. I am glad to hear that none were. Nothing pleases me more than this, as I did not want to have to go into the courts with the clubs."

City detectives or plainclothesmen visited the clubs, and found at each place that the bars were closed tight for the day, and the club atmosphere resembled that of the desert of Sahara.

MAIL FACILITIES FOR RURAL POINTS WILL BE INCREASED

Washington, May 2.—Plans for a general readjustment of the rural postal service throughout the country by July to provide mail facilities for a million persons not included in the present routing system, were announced tonight by Postmaster General Burleson.

The postoffice department, Mr. Burleson said, had ordered all retrenchings of travel by carriers eliminated and unnecessary service, where found to exist, discontinued. Motor vehicles will be provided under the new plan where highways will permit.

"Rural service will be extended to every farmer reasonably entitled to it," said Mr. Burleson, "as rapidly as the new adjustments can be made."

DR. FERRELL SLAIN BY NEGRO BURGLARS

Noted Educator and Author and Coal Mine Operator Murdered Near Birmingham.

Birmingham, Ala., May 2.—Dr. Chiles Clifton Ferrell, president of the West Pratt Coal company, was shot and killed early this morning at Praco, a mining camp 39 miles east of here, in a fight with two burglars.

Dr. Ferrell was one of the most noted educators and authors of the south, in addition to being a wealthy coal operator.

Killed as He Rounded Corner.

Dr. Ferrell was with his two children and a negro servant when he was killed. Mrs. Ferrell being in Birmingham. He heard a noise at the rear of the commissary and went to investigate, after discharging his revolver several times into the air to frighten the intruders. As he rounded a corner of the building, one shot was fired at him from a shotgun. The load took effect in the left side and he died in a few hours.

Within two hours after the crime was discovered two negroes had been arrested for the murder. They were captured about a mile from the scene of the killing by the use of bloodhounds. In one of the negroes' possession was found a shotgun, which, the officers claim, had recently been discharged.

Educated at Vanderbilt and Abroad.

Dr. Ferrell was born in 1856 in Greenville S. C., and was educated at Vanderbilt university. He went abroad to study and received a philosopher's degree in the University of Leipsic, afterward studying at the University of Paris. After extensive travel in Europe he returned to the United States, and for years was professor of modern languages at the University of Mississippi. Since 1908 he has been engaged in literary work until two years ago, when he accepted the presidency of the coal company and removed to Praco.

Dr. Ferrell married Miss Mae Tallaferro, of Birmingham, and is survived by his widow and two children. He is closely related to a number of prominent southern families.

GREAT GERMAN CANNON DAMAGED NEAR DUNKIRK

Believed That the Long Range Gun Which Has Been Bombarding the French Port Has Been Put Out of Action—Sharp Fighting All Along Western Front.

London, May 2.—French guns are hammering at the great German fortress of Metz, according to the official statement issued in Paris tonight.

The French claim that their fire has been efficacious against one of the forts on the south front of Metz and the German barracks and the railway nearby.

The French occupation of the summit of Hartmans-Weilerkopf is confirmed in a dispatch from a correspondent, who has just returned to Paris from a visit to the French positions there. The entire hill has been devastated as a result of fighting which has been going on there for weeks.

There has been no further bombardment of Dunkirk, official reports indicate that the Germans only had one big gun in position and that the French airmen have made it so uncomfortable for the gun crew that it has been withdrawn.

Along the rest of the western front, attacks and counter-attacks continue.

French Steamer Europe and British Steamer Fulgent Destroyed in English Waters—Lives Were Lost When the Fulgent Was Sunk.

London, May 2.—The American oil tank steamer Gulflight, which sailed from Port Arthur, Texas, April 10, for Rouen, France, was torpedoed at noon Saturday off the Scilly Islands, according to a Central News dispatch today.

The crew of the tank steamer Gulflight has been landed on the Scilly Islands, according to another dispatch received by the Central News agency.

The officers are quoted as saying that the captain of the vessel had been killed and that two sailors lost their lives by drowning.

The crew of the Gulflight was taken off by a patrol boat and the tank steamer is being towed by another vessel.

The captain of the Gulflight, according to the same advices, died of heart failure as a result of shock. Two seamen jumped overboard and were drowned.

The vessel was towed into Crow sound and beached.

French Troops Retire After Stubborn Battle—London Says Landing Was Intended to Be Temporary.

London, May 2.—A German submarine on Saturday sank the old British destroyer Recruit off the Galloper lightship, in the North sea, but the score was more than equaled by other British destroyers, which, after a stern chase, overtook and sank two German torpedo boats that had accompanied the submarine on her cruise.

Some of the crew of the Recruit were rescued by the trawler Daisy, but as the submarine drew off the fishermen they were compelled to leave the others to their fate. The British destroyers rescued most of the crews of the German torpedo boats and two officers were picked up by a passing steamer and taken to Holland.

The following statement was issued by the admiralty:

"A series of small affairs took place in the neighborhood of the Galloper and North Hinder lightships Saturday.

"During the forenoon, H. M. destroyer Recruit was sunk by a submarine, four officers and twenty-one men being saved by the trawler Daisy.

"At 2 p. m. the trawler Colombia was attacked by two German torpedo boats, who approached her from the westward and commenced an action without hoisting their colors. The Colombia was sunk by a torpedo, only one deck hand being saved by the other trawlers.

comprising the Laforey, Leonidas, Lawford and Lark, chased the two German vessels and, after a brief running fight of about one hour, sank them both.

"The British destroyers sustained no casualties.

"Two German officers and forty-four men were rescued from the sea and made prisoners of war."

Recruit Sunk as Patrol Duty.

The destroyer Recruit was on patrol duty Saturday morning when the submarine sank her. According to details received here the Recruit, when struck, signalled for assistance and her call was answered by the trawler Daisy and thirty men out of her complement of sixty-five were saved.

It is stated that a torpedo was fired at the Daisy, which was forced to leave one of her rescue boats behind and that the submarine chased the boat and fired her gun at it, wounding four men.

British torpedo boat destroyers, sighting in the distance two German torpedo boats which had sunk the trawler Colombia and apparently were supporting a submarine, engaged the Germans at long range in the vicinity of the North Hinder light. The Germans endeavored to run away, but the British boats pressed them hard and shortly afterward sank them. The British boats rescued some of the crews of the Germans and landed them today.

TRAWLER FOUGHT GERMAN WARSHIP.

Yarmouth, England, May 3.—The trawler Barbados has arrived here in a damaged condition as the result of an encounter with a German torpedo boat off the Belgian coast Saturday. The captain was wounded in the foot, but the rest of the crew escaped unhurt.

The Barbados reports that the trawler Colombia was torpedoed and sunk with seventeen hands. One survivor and one German bluejacket, who had fallen overboard, were brought to Yarmouth by the Barbados.

The Barbados defended herself against the torpedo boat with two small guns and the captain says the German ship was evidently hit, as steam was seen escaping from her. The wheel house and funnel of the Barbados were riddled with shot.

GERMAN OFFICERS PICKED UP AT SEA.

London, May 2.—The Norwegian steamer Varild, which has arrived at Maasluis, Holland, from London, reports that she saved two officers of a German torpedo boat sunk in the North sea, says Reuter's Maasluis correspondent.

The officers were taken to a patrol boat.

6,000 CANADIANS LOST IN FIGHTING AT YPRES

Two Thousand Reported Missing — One Entire Battalion Apparently Annihilated.

Ottawa, May 2.—Casualties among the Canadians in the fighting at Ypres now are reported to have been nearly 6,000. Of these 2,000 are reported missing, the missing being chiefly the Thirteenth and Fourteenth battalions of Montreal Highlanders, each 1,000 strong.

It is stated that 700 officers and men were killed and 3,000 wounded. The totals thus given would indicate that more than one-fourth of the 21,000 men in the division were put out of action.

The Canadian official eye-witness reported that two battalions of Highlanders were left behind in the fighting at St. Julien.

"The German line," the eye-witness said, "rolled over the deserted village, but for several hours after the enemy had become master of the village sullen and persistent rifle fire showed they were not yet master of the Canadian rear guard."

As Berlin reported a thousand Canadian prisoners, it is feared here that a thousand of these rear guards were killed before exhaustion of ammunition compelled the detachment to surrender.

MAP OF GALLIPOLI PENINSULA

ALLIES ON GALLIPOLI PENINSULA.

The accompanying map shows the scene of operations of the French and British armies in the combined land and sea attack on the Dardanelles. The Gallipoli peninsula may be roughly likened to the island of Manhattan, with the allied fleet in the Hudson (Aegean) and in the East river (the Dardanelles). The French landing force holds Kum Kaleh, on the Asiatic, or Long Island, side. On the Gallipoli peninsula the British have thrown a line across its southern extremity from a point northeast of Eski Hissarlik, on the strait, to the mouth of a stream flowing into the Aegean, as indicated on the map. They have also landed at Gaba Tebeh, ten miles from the tip of the peninsula, and opposite Sari Bair, ten miles further north. It has already been reported that a British force had been put ashore at Cape Suvla, on the Aegean, marked on the map, and dispatches told of a landing at Enos, which was said to have been evacuated by the Turks. Thus, besides the French army on the Asiatic side, troops may be said to be converging on the Dardanelles forts from five points. In the meantime the Russian fleet is bombarding the forts of the Bosporus, on the other side of Constantinople.

tons burden. She was equipped with wireless telegraphy apparatus.

STIR CAUSED AT WASHINGTON.

Washington, May 2.—Press reports of the torpedoing of the American steamer Gulflight and the loss of her captain and some members of the crew created a stir tonight in official circles here.

If first reports are borne out, the attack on the Gulflight constitutes the first case of an American ship struck by a torpedo with the consequent loss of lives. Two have been sunk by mines, the responsibility for which never has been fixed, and an American, Leon C. Thresher, was drowned when the British ship Falaba was torpedoed.

The United States government has just completed its investigation of the Thresher case, but in view of the direct attack on an American vessel now reported, it is probable that both incidents will be dealt with in whatever diplomatic action is taken.

It was recalled tonight that in the note sent to Germany in answer to Germany's proclamation of a sea war zone the Washington government stated that it would hold Germany "to a strict accountability" for the loss of any American lives or vessels.

The course of the United States in the case of the Gulflight is not likely to be determined for several days, as some time probably will be required to get the facts. The possibility of any action other than a demand for damages is considered remote because of the belief of officials that the attack on the Gulflight will be found to have been accidental.

New Haven, Conn., May 2.—News of the torpedoing of the American steamer Gulflight off the Scilly Islands on Saturday was communicated to President Wilson tonight on his special car, en route from Williamstown, Mass., to Washington. He declined to comment.

Boston, May 2.—The captain of the tank steamer Gulflight, who lost his life when his vessel was torpedoed off the Scilly islands, was Alfred Gunther, of New York; the first mate is Ralph Smith, of Wakefield, and several members of the crew are from New England, according to information obtained tonight from relatives.

Captain Gunther was commander of the steamship Oklahoma, which went down in a gale in January, 1914, off the New Jersey coast. With several members of the crew he escaped in a lifeboat and was picked up by another steamer.

New York, May 2.—The government war risk bureau carried no insurance on the American oil tanker Gulflight, torpedoed off the Scilly islands, on the last voyage of that ship, although on the preceding trip from American ports to Europe the steamer's hull was insured for $425,000 with the bureau, William C. Delano, director of the bureau, said here tonight.

Port Arthur, Texas, May 2.—The American steamer Gulflight, torpedoed by a German submarine Saturday, has been towed to the Scilly islands. This information was received here tonight in a cablegram to George H. Caber, general manager of the Gulf Refining company, owners of the steamer.

SUBMARINE SINKS FRENCH STEAMER.

London, May 2.—The French steamer Europe, from Barry for St. Nazaire, with a cargo of coal, was torpedoed by a German submarine Saturday morning near Bishop's Rock and sank, says a Lloyds dispatch from Penzance. The crew was reached by a steam drifter.

The submarine permitted the crew of the Europe to leave their ship, then shelled the steamer, which failed to sink. Meanwhile the skipper of the steam drifter Rosevine, attracted by the noise of the submarine's gun, investigated, whereupon the submarine started to chase the Rosevine.

The Rosevine sent up distress rockets and was proceeding toward the Scilly islands, when a patrol boat, which previously had not been seen owing to the foggy weather, appeared. Together the patrol boat and the drifter went back toward the Europe, at which the submarine was still firing.

Half a mile off from the Europe the Rosevine picked up a boat loaded with members of the crew of the steamer. The work of rescue was interrupted by three shells from the submarine, which fell within thirty yards of the drifter.

Then, apparently alarmed at the appearance of the patrol boat, the submarine torpedoed the Europe, which disappeared in a cloud of steam and coal dust.

The submarine carried no number.

There are three French steamers named Europe. Bishop's Rock, where the Europe was sent to the bottom, is one of the Scilly islands southwest of the main group.

BRITISH SHIP SUNK AND LIVES ARE LOST.

London, May 2.—The British steamer Fulgent was sunk by a German submarine northwest of the Skellig Rocks in the dark of Saturday morning, says a Lloyds dispatch from Kilrush, Ireland.

A boat containing nine survivors and the body of the captain, who had been shot and killed, was rescued by a trawler and landed at Kilrush. The trawler was unable to find the second boat containing the remainder of the Fulgent's crew.

The Fulgent was of 1,222 tons, and was built in 1919; she was owned by J. Westoll, of Sunderland. The Skellig Rocks, near where she was sunk, lie off the southwest coast of the county of Kerry, England.

GERMANY SEIZES GRAIN IN RUSSIAN POLAND

Berlin, May 2.—The German administration of Russian Poland announces the expropriation of all cereals in the district. Until the coming harvest, the inhabitants are to be allowed 55 pounds of grain each.

May day passed virtually unnoticed in Berlin. There were a few socialist meetings, but these were held behind closed doors.

GERMANY IS CALLING ON LANDSTURM MEN

London, May 2.—The Berliner Tageblatt says landsturm men who have not yet served have been summoned to Schoenberg beginning tomorrow. The concentration will commence with the class of 1879 and continue until May 12, ending with the class of 1876. The newspaper adds that a further calling out of the landsturm will begin June 4 with the class of 1875, and end June 16 with the classes of 1869 and 1870.

CONTINUOUS RAIN OF SHELLS POURED ON GERMAN WORKS

but no battle of importance has developed out of them.

GERMANS RAID BALTIC PROVINCES.

The Germans claim an advance in their raid into the Russian Baltic provinces, and, after defeating the Russians, to have reached the region southwest of Mitau, which is well on the road to Riga, and, if they are in strong force, they should prove a serious menace to Russian communications. It is believed here, however, that the movement is nothing more than a raid and the Russians profess not to be disturbed over it.

The Russian war office admits the occupation by the Germans of the region of Shavli, in the province of Kovno; that German patrols have appeared near Libau, an important port in Courland on the Baltic sea, and that hostile torpedo boats have visited the Gulf of Riga.

Both Russians and Austrians claim successes in the Carpathians, while in Poland the fighting that now is in progress has shown no decisive advantage for either side.

BIG GERMAN GUN PUT OUT OF ACTION.

Paris, May 2.—The official report given out today by the French war department says it is believed that the great German gun which twice has bombarded Dunkirk from a range of 23½ miles has been put out of action. It also announces the bombardment by the French of one of the German forts at Metz, the Lorraine capital. The text of the statement follows:

"There is no modification in the situation along the entire front to report.

"Information received from a deserter is to the effect that for about two months engineers of the Krupp gun works have been directing in the suburbs of Dixmude, a sector where there has been no fighting for several months, the installation of a marine gun capable of firing a shell over a very long range. It is this gun which may have bombarded Dunkirk. The gun is believed to have a range of 38 kilometres (23.5 miles).

"Only nine shells were fired on the second and last bombardment of the French seaport. There is reason to believe that the gun either has been damaged by a method of fire which the most powerful pieces do not resist a long time, or that the continual presence of our aeroplanes has had the effect of stopping its fire.

"On our side we yesterday bombarded one of the forts on the southern front of its entrenched camp of Metz."

Germans Used Poison Devices.

Tonight's official war office communication said:

"In Belgium to the north of Ypres the Germans attempted an attack on our right, but were immediately checked by our machine guns.

"Nothing new has occurred on the British front.

"At Maucourt to the south of Chaulnes an attack, in which about eight men engaged, was directed against our lines. The Germans were armed with wire cutters, grenades, automatic pistols and knives. They were almost all cut down by our infantry, several of them were taken prisoner.

"In the valley of the Aisne and in Champagne the enemy employed during the course of the day divers devices which, however, were without effect—near Tracy-le-Mont glass tubes which threw off in breaking the odor of ether; between Rheims and the Argonne bombs charged with inflammable materials, and finally gases emitting a greenish smoke, which rose over the lines of the enemy without reaching ours.

"In the Forest of Le Pretre the Germans essayed a counter-attack, but were not able to debouch. We are holding all our gain of yesterday.

"We continued during the day to bombard the forts to the south of the entrenched camp of Metz. The efficacy of our fire on one of these forts is undoubted as well as on the barracks and the railway nearby.

GERMANS PUSH INTO RUSSIA.

Berlin, May 2.—(Via London.)—German troops in pursuit of retreating Russian forces have penetrated into the region lying to the southwest of Mitau, the capital of Courland, according to the German official statement issued by the army headquarters' staff today. Mitau is twenty-five miles southwest of the Russian seaport of Riga, which is the seat of government of the Baltic provinces. The text of the statement follows:

"In Flanders the enemy after heavy artillery preparations again attempted to storm our new positions to the northeast of Ypres. The French attacked strongly between the canal and the road from Ypres to St. Julien. The British attacked feebly to the east of this road. The efforts of the enemy were unsuccessful owing to our active flank and back fire from Broodseinde and Veidhoek. Two machine guns fell into our hands.

"In the Argonne our attacks to the north of Four de Paris progressed. In spite of a strong defense the French lost several trenches and 156 prisoners.

"Between the Meuse and the Moselle the only heavy fighting was in the forest of Le Pretre, where the French attacked in great numbers. We repulsed all the attacks, some of which reached into our trenches, with heavy losses for the enemy. We captured 90 men.

"Yesterday two more French aeroplanes were disabled. One was destroyed near Rheims by gun fire. The other, belonging to an air squadron, was forced to land at a point to the northwest of Verdun.

"Our operations in northwestern Russia are progressing. Near Seawle (Shavli) we captured 400 more Russians. Pursuing the flying Russians the German vanguard reached the region to the southwest of Mitau.

"The Russians made an attack in the region of Kalwarya (East Prussian frontier), but were repulsed with heavy losses. Three hundred Russians were made prisoners."

RUSSIANS CHECKED, AUSTRIANS REPORT.

Vienna, May 2.—(Via London.)—Today's official communication said:

"In Russian Poland the enemy has been repulsed in some sectors of our advanced positions, our troops reaching the wire entanglements at the principal points.

"On the West Galician front of the Carpathians the artillery has been active.

"On the heights between Orawa and the Opor valley we repelled heavy attacks by the Russians and captured 200 prisoners. Afterward we proceeded to attack a strong Russian point east of the height of Ostry and took several hundred prisoners and machine guns.

"In southeast Galicia and Bukowina there is no change in the situation."

GERMAN AIRSHIPS BOMBARD TOWNS.

Paris, May 2.—German aeroplanes today bombarded various towns of eastern France.

Four machines flew over Epinal, capital of the French department of Vosges, and dropped twenty incendiary bombs. No one was hurt. The only damage was two small fires.

Aeroplanes also visited Remiremont, 16 miles southeast of Epinal. There French aeroplanes rose to meet the raiders and the Germans turned toward their own frontier.

RUSSIANS ADMIT GERMAN ADVANCE.

Petrograd, May 2.—(Via London, May 3, 2:04 a. m.)—The following official communication was issued tonight:

"Detachments of the enemy occupy the region of Szawle (Shavli, 77 miles northwest of Kovno). German patrols appeared May 1 near Libau. The same day hostile torpedo boats visited the Gulf of Riga.

"West of the Niemen engagements continue. At the village of Tayenko, on the right bank of the river Netta, an entire company of a German line regiment surrendered.

"In Galicia, on the night of the 30th, strong Austrian forces opened an offensive in the region of Ciezkowice. Our fire forced the enemy to retire 600 paces from before our trenches.

"In the Carpathians the same night, we repulsed Austro-German attacks in the vicinity of Golovetzko and Senetchouw."

AUSTRIA PREPARES TO STRIKE ITALY

Strong Forces Are Being Massed on the Frontier. Heavy Artillery Placed in Commanding Positions.

Venice, Italy, May 2.—(Via London.) A dispatch from Udine, Italy, reports active military preparations on the Austrian side of the frontier. Trains of heavy artillery, proceeding by night, are said to occupy commanding positions. Night traffic in the districts of Goritz, Gradisca, Monfalcone and Tolmein, all in Austria, is prohibited without special authority. It is stated that recruits from the southern part of the monarchy are being concentrated at Lubinna.

Regiments proceeding to the frontier consist chiefly of Hungarian, Bosnian and Croatian troops. They are proceeding through all passes leading to Italy.

The police are reported to be preparing for war by watching all Italians living in the Trentino district to be in readiness to place them in detention should hostilities begin. The population is becoming extremely nervous, food is getting scarcer, it being reported that in Goritz there is only a sufficient supply for three days, and fearing hostilities, the authorities have prepared to proclaim a state of siege.

AUSTRIA MAY MAKE FURTHER CONCESSIONS.

Rome, May 2.—(Via Paris.)—Although Vienna's answer giving the final decision of the Austrian government concerning territory to be ceded to Italy has not arrived, indications received in official quarters here leads to the supposition that the answer will contain further concessions. It is not believed, however, that the concessions will satisfy Italy, as claimed, which, if as affirmed, are really minimum, mean virtually an end to the negotiations.

All the ministers met today with Premier Salandra presiding, but no speedy signing of decrees and to discuss the international situation. Baron Burian, the foreign minister, was the first to leave the conference, going from it to the foreign office to meet Prince von Buelow, the German ambassador, with whom he remained for forty-five minutes.

It is asserted that Prince von Buelow intended to Baron Sonnino the lines of Austria's expected answer to Italy.

HAIL OF SHELLS ON MOUNTAIN TOP

But French Hold Crest of Hartmanns-Weiler, Which Dominates Plain of Alsace. Germans Charged in Vain.

Hartmanns-Weiler, Alsace, Friday, April 30.—(Via Paris, May 2.)—Shells, great and small, fell on this spur in the Vosges mountains at the rate of from 60 to 84 a minute for hours last Monday, after French mountaineers had carried the crest by assault. Twice before had the Alpine troops won the summit, and had been forced from it by obstinate German attacks. This time they clung to the craters made by mines and shells and to the scant shelter of abandoned trenches and dugouts.

When the shell fire suddenly stopped and the Germans swept upward, again the Alpines, supported and reinforced, threw back attack after attack.

The Germans persisted with the utmost courage and the fighting after the first rushes was with the bayonet. Dead and wounded fell so thickly that bodies touched each other. Presently the assaults died down and the Germans sank into their trenches on the slopes. They have remained there since, while day and night the French are enlarging and deepening their trenches and digging and roofing in shell-proof shelters.

This is the culmination of three months of violent efforts by one side to hold and by the other to take an eminence dominating the plain of Alsace.

It Is a Harsh Scene.

A correspondent of the Associated Press was with the French troops for one hour and a half today on the top of Hartmanns-Weiler, now reoccupied by French soldiers. It is a harsh scene. Splintered and jagged stems of what were thick pine woods stand up among the boulders. The forest has been cut down by machine gun and shell fire. The whole place is scarred by the deadly business of the last three weeks.

Sharpshooters on both sides snipe away at any show of a hostile helmet, peak or cap. Observers watch through crevices between stones or bags of sand concealed by pine branches. A periscope thrust above the trenches is shattered three or four seconds after its appearance.

The foremost points of the French position now are well roofed in with pine logs. Machine guns have been closely placed to sweep the approaches with cross-fire.

The German trenches, in which no doubt the same deadly alertness prevails, are at one place within 25 or 30 feet, and at no place are they farther away than 150 yards.

The colonel in command took the correspondent to one of the forward observatories and in whispers explained the position. The men standing by their pieces were taking morning bread and coffee. The instant readiness suggested a well ordered American fire engine house, where the men at the sound of a gong each jumps to his place.

Country of Cherry Water.

Looking far beyond the German trenches to the plain below, sprinkled with villages and farm houses, one can see a cherry orchard now in full bloom.

This is the country where kirschwasser (cherry water) is made. The landscape seems to be whitened by the tens of thousands of cherry trees in bloom. Murderous mountain knots and the beautiful country spread out in the country below are in poignant contrast.

Through glasses one could see women washing clothes in a creek, children playing and farmers working with oxen in the field. All the ordinary business of country life was going on as if this part of the 400-mile battle line was not at their front doors.

The men in the trenches were quiet, weather-seasoned men. They talked simply, even with dignity, of their work. One of the men cut open a loaf from a batch of German army brown bread left behind and compared it with the white French bread of his ration.

Beef, preserved and cooked, in gelatin casings, is being served to part of the troops, and they seemingly like it better than the American canned meats.

The forests back of the fighting point are astir with men cutting and sawing trees for roofing trenches. Others are widening the mountain passes into roads along which wind strings of mules loaded with shells, ammunition boxes, bread, casks of water and wine and a thousand articles essential to operations in the forests. They also carry packages from home for the soldiers.

Wounded Carried on Mules.

Passing down the other way are mule files with empty bags, casks and boxes and with wounded soldiers swung in a sort of basket chair, one on each side of a led mule. Those more seriously wounded are carried by stretcher men. Near here, in another part of the Vosges, Harvard ambulance men are working.

Paris papers two days old are delivered regularly, and the men and officers off duty in this rugged region read the gossip which circulates on the boulevards and the same pleasantries are repeated.

The Associated Press correspondent was the first civilian who had visited this part of the battle front in months. Everyone talked of a long war and even of another winter in the trenches. "Ah, yes," they said, "these Germans must take a lot of beating."

The only solution of the war, from the soldiers' way of looking at it, is to kill many more hundreds of thousands of their adversaries and to keep on killing and pushing them back. They feel in the Vosges that they are making positive gains at losses less than the ones they inflict.

LOSSES FOR ITALIANS IN FIGHT WITH REBELS

Tripoli, May 2.—(Via Paris.)—The Italian commander, Colonel Miani, with a mixed column, which included numerous irregulars, attacked a rebel camp south of Syrta on April 29. The irregulars went over to the enemy at the beginning of the engagement, placing the Italian troops in a critical position. By hard fighting, however, they extricated themselves and got back to the fort, but with severe losses.

FINANCES DISCUSSED BY ALLIED MINISTERS

London, May 2.—The French embassy in London announced today that Alexandre Ribot, the French minister of finance, had returned to Paris after spending three days in London conferring with Chancellor David Lloyd-George.

The two statesmen discussed various financial questions, particularly advances to be made to the allied countries and the payments to be made to England, Canada and the United States for purchases made by the French government.

A perfect understanding, the embassy statement said, exists between the finance ministers of the allied powers.

The United States of America is by far the greatest steel producing country on earth. Germany comes next, with Great Britain third. The figures for 1910 (the latest at hand for the moment) show this country to be equal in steel products to both Germany and the United Kingdom.

MRS. LYON'S ACHES AND PAINS

Have All Gone Since Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Terre Hill, Pa.—"Kindly permit me to give you my testimonial in favor of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. When I first began taking it I was suffering from female troubles for some time and had almost all kinds of aches—pains in lower part of back and in sides, and pressing down pains. I could not sleep and had no appetite. Since I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound the aches and pains are all gone and I feel like a new woman. I cannot praise your medicine too highly."—Mrs. AUGUSTUS LYON, Terre Hill, Pa.

It is true that nature and a woman's work has produced the grandest remedy for woman's ills that the world has ever known. From the roots and herbs of the field, Lydia E. Pinkham, forty years ago, gave to womankind a remedy for their peculiar ills which has proved more efficacious than any other combination of drugs ever compounded, and today Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is recognized from coast to coast as the standard remedy for woman's ills.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health—many of them openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; and in some cases that it has saved them from surgical operations.

Break Even With Pels--Home for 3 Weeks

EDITED BY DICK JEMISON.

Hiett Puzzles Pelicans; Crackers Get Even Break; Pels Make Seven Errors

New Orleans, May. 2.—(Special.)—New Orleans batsmen were helpless before the dazzling speed of "Lindy" Hiett today and Atlanta took the first game of the series by the score of 4 to 1. "Pop Boy" Smith, who hurled for New Orleans, was not in his best form, though the fact that the Pelican infield went to pieces behind him was solely responsible for his defeat.

Bluhm, who generally has been recognized as an accurate first-sacker, had another bad day, making two glaring errors and figuring in one or two more plays, which are not charged against him in the box score. Reilly also committed two errors, while Flick, Higgins and Hendryx each fell down once.

By taking the last two games, Atlanta obtains an even break for the series.

Four Scattered Hits.

The Pelicans registered only four hits off Hiett, two of which were made by "Pop Boy" Smith. Another, Reilly's triple in the first inning, resulted in the Pelicans' lone tally, as Reilly scored a second later on Sylvester's infield out.

Lee, Williams and Hiett, with two hits each, led the Cracker attack.

Atlanta was the first to score, Lee, first up, getting on when Thomas dropped his high pop fly. Lee advanced to second when Williams was thrown out, short to first, and scored on Shiffs scorching single over second.

The Pelicans came back in their half of the round and put over the aforementioned and lonesome tally, after which they calmly ate out of Hiett's hands for the rest of the game.

"B" Smith benched the visitors one-two-three in the second and third, but before fireworks started again in the fourth.

The Winning Runs.

Otto Williams singled to left, stole second and scored when Rumler rammed a line drive over second. Hendryx fumbled the ball, allowing Rumler to continue to second base and the big Cracker was safe in an attempt to steal third when Higgins threw the ball over Thomas' head. Rumler was thrown out at the plate by Reilly when he tried to score on the misplay. That ended the run-getting in that frame.

After Kibel grounded out in the fifth, Potts was safe when Bluhm dropped Reilly's perfect throw on a grounder and then Hiett singled, advancing Potts to second. Lee came through with a single over third, scoring Potts, and Hiett tallied when Thomas threw Williams' grounder to the bleachers.

Smith and the rest of the local aggregation got together together after that and the count stood at 4-1 until the end.

TECH AND GEORGIA MEET THIS WEEK

Battle in Two Games at Grant Field on Friday and Saturday — Very Fierce Struggles.

Tech and Georgia will meet in the first of their series of four games in Atlanta next Friday, two games being scheduled for Atlanta this Friday and Saturday and two games for Athens next Friday and Saturday.

It is always extremely difficult to endeavor to dope a winner when these two teams hook up in any branch of sport, but it is going to be considerably more difficult this season. They appear very evenly matched.

Moley's Champion Barons Play Crackers Four Games; Lookouts Next in Order

By Dick Jemison.

Carleton Molesworth and his Birmingham Barons will be the attraction at Ponce de Leon this afternoon in the first of a four-game series, and the first of twenty consecutive games that the Crackers have scheduled for the home lot.

The Barons will be here through Thursday, then come the Lookouts, the Chicks, the Travelers and the Volunteers in that order for four games each before the Crackers leave on a twenty-game road trip which will include four games in Chattanooga, Nashville, Little Rock, Memphis and New Orleans in that order.

On this home stay it is strictly up to the Crackers to shake the jinx from their individual and collective shoulders and go to playing good consistent baseball. It is up to them to grab a majority of the games to stay in the old pennant hunt, and once in a winning mood the Crackers have the ability to keep it up.

The principal trouble with the team to date has been that it has not been able to get together. Some one department is usually out of order. Either the pitching is bad when the hitting and fielding are good, or the fielding and hitting are off color when the pitching is good, and so on.

Some New Faces.

Cracker fans will be greeted by some new faces when the Barons make their appearance here today, some faces that are entirely new and others that were familiar in uniforms of other clubs.

The infield shows Captain Ellam at short, Clark, who played a few games last season at second; Carroll, last year's utility man in place of Covington, first, and Edson Hemingway, formerly of the Vols, on third, vice Eddie Stanky.

McBride and Magee are still in the outfield, with Stewart, also of last year's team, in reserve, with Vale Sloan, the former Vol slugger, in right field.

Behind the bat "Shotgun" Wallace will again be seen, with Hale, a newcomer, filling the place of Graves, who is now with the Braves.

Delmar Hardgrove, Dave Roth, Dick Robertson and Arthur Johnson are returned to the hurling staff. Black, the former Montgomery southpaw, and Grimes, formerly of Chattanooga, are the other members of the corps.

The game will start at 3:30 o'clock, Umpires Rudderham and Wallace probably pitted against Manning and Smith. The batting order of the two teams will probably be as follows:

The Dissatisfied!

(John A. Sleicher in Leslie's.)

It is the day of the dissatisfied. The kicker, the growler and the disturber are making themselves public nuisances. The people are tired of them. It is the easiest thing in the world to find fault. There isn't a shop, a factory, or a business house in which at least one dissatisfied creature will not be found. No family circle is free from the jarring element. No church congregation is without a disturbing influence.

Some one always thinks he has been slighted. Some one always has opinions that others will not hold. Some one always demands more recognition than he is entitled to. By ambition even the angels fell.

It is easy for a congressional investigating committee to find its Mulhalls, its Lamars and other discredited or dissatisfied witnesses to testify that the world is going wrong.

Just now we are witnessing another exhibition of meddlesome interference by the industrial trade commission. It is summoning the colored porters on the Pullman cars and dismissed telegraph operators to tell of their grievances. Foolish questions are being asked of them to create the impression that the stock in trade of all demagogues) that labor is crushed under the heel of capital.

We have a great, many of self-supporting, satisfied, contented, law-abiding, peaceful citizens enrolled among the workingmen of the United States. If they were left alone by disturbers, agitators and demagogues, they would be still happier and more contented and they should know it.

We have not yet reached the millennium. Suffering and sorrow abide with us now as they have ever since the creation, but an overruling Providence has dealt kindly and justly with us. It has given the people of the United States more reasons to be contented and thankful than to be dissatisfied and complaining. Especially in this favored land of ours has this been true, while all the rest of the world is stricken with war.

The call of the hour is for hope, faith and gratitude.

Every twenty-five hours there is poured into the Harlem river 99,000,000 gallons of New York city's sewage; into the North river 132,000,000 gallons and into the East river 264,000,000 gallons.

The edition of the New York telephone directory has reached more than 600,000 copies.

MAY DAY FESTIVITIES AT AGNES SCOTT TODAY

College Campus Turned Into Veritable Woodland Bower for This Event.

The annual May-day festivities of Agnes Scott college will take place this afternoon at 4 o'clock. The program will be presented on the college campus, which has been converted into a veritable woodland bower. The participants in the program will be the Agnes Scott students, who will be garbed in classic costumes appropriate to the occasion.

At 4 o'clock the celebration will begin with readings on May-day and spring from Emerson and Longfellow. Miss Gertrude Amundson will be the reader for the afternoon. Many new and artistic features have been added to the program, although the enthroning of the May queen and the ever popular Maypole dance will constitute an important part of the entertainment.

Symbolic dances will be given by the young ladies in costume, also flower dances, old English songs and other attractive features. Appropriate music will be furnished by a well-trained orchestra, composed of students from the violin department of Agnes Scott and two of the music faculty, Miss Hunt and Mr. Dieckmann.

Altogether it will be a gala and festive occasion, to which the general public is cordially invited. The seniors of the Atlanta and Decatur girls' high schools have been invited as special guests of the Agnes Scott students, and it is expected a large crowd will go out from Atlanta to witness the festivities.

MARQUARDT TO ADDRESS MACON CENTRAL UNION

L. P. Marquardt, recently elected president of the Georgia Federation of Labor, will go to Macon Wednesday to attend the regular meeting of the Macon Central Labor union, and deliver an address before the body. C. C. O'Fry is president of the Macon central body.

President Marquardt plans to visit several cities in the state within the next few months and address each of the central labor bodies and federation of trades.

DR. POTEAT PREACHES AT THE FIRST BAPTIST

A forceful and impressive sermon, based upon the subject, "What Is Religion?" was delivered in the pulpit of the First Baptist church Sunday morning by Dr. William L. Poteat, of Wake Forest college, North Carolina, one of the south's most noted natural scientists.

The sermon was delivered under the auspices of the Twentieth Century Bible class. An unusually large audience was in attendance. Dr. Poteat returned home last night.

GEORGE W. BISHOP, OF ATHENS, KILLED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Birmingham, Ala., May 2.—(Special.) George W. Bishop, of Athens, Ga., a traveling tobacco salesman, is dead at Ensley, part of greater Birmingham, as a result of an auto ride late last night. Bishop put up at the Florence hotel, and early last night got in with a chauffeur of a public taxicab company. A ride was proposed, and two women joined the party. The auto smashed in a pole. The chauffeur and women were hurt, but not dangerously so.

Bishop was rushed to a local infirmary, and died early today. He leaves a family. Relatives came here tonight after the body. An investigation will be made tomorrow into the accident.

ATLANTA NEGROES ARE URGED TO SEND CHILDREN TO SCHOOL

Three interesting meetings were held Sunday in St. Paul's A. M. E. church, Olivâ Grove Baptist and Beulah Baptist churches, to urge the colored people to send their children to school, and discuss plans by which each colored child can attend school next term.

R. R. Holmes, president of the Holmes institute, a charitable and industrial institution for colored children, made the principal address at the meetings. President Holmes said that the colored chilren who had never attended school and those who could not attend on account of the crowded conditions, were becoming worthless citizens. The board of education would seat every child who applied, he said, if they had the money appropriated.

A committee was appointed to visit the colored schools and report to the board of education and city council, as follows: B. R. Holmes, Rev. W. M. Ferrel and David T. Howard.

PIKE IMPROVING ROADS.

Barnesville to Be Well Represented at Griffin.

Barnesville, Ga., May 2.—(Special.)—Citizens of Barnesville are deeply interested in the location of the Dixie highway, and will have a strong committee at the meeting to be held in Griffin when the citizens along the proposed route between Atlanta and Macon will organize to present the claims of this route. In fact, the citizens here suggested this meeting in Griffin.

The Pike road force is doing some exceptionally fine work on the portion of the route which is in this county. The camp is now located in Barnesville. The Forsyth-Barnesville road which is in Pike has been vastly improved, several important crooks having been taken out and the other part of the road put in fine condition. The Monroe authorities have promised to work equally as well the Monroe portion of the route. The route between Barnesville and Milner has been changed, and will now make a bee-line by Cauthen's spring, between the two points, cutting off just one mile. Superintendent Jones, of the Pike road force, states that the Milner-Barnesville road will now be "a peach."

Hon. E. L. Rainey, one of the prison commissioners, spent Friday at the Pike camp, and was greatly pleased with his inspection.

PUT SPIRIT INTO WORK, URGES NEGRO PASTOR

"Put spirit into your work. Take the gloom off the job. Kill drudgery." This was one of the ways pointed out to his people by Dr. H. H. Proctor in his sermon at the First Congregational church, colored, yesterday morning, by which they might tap the sources of joy here and now.

"Another way," he continued, "is by making friends. True friends are better than money. The best way to make friends is to be worthy of them. A true friend is one of God's moving pictures in the world.

"Worship is a well-spring of inexhaustible joy. By this one becomes one with God. A well-spent Sabbath sanctifies toil, purifies friendship and gives a vision of the pinnacles of that city toward which we journey."

ATLANTA ODD FELLOWS CELEBRATE BIRTHDAY

Anniversary Is Observed With Appropriate Exercises at Universalist Church.

Several hundred Atlanta Odd Fellows, Sunday at the First Universalist church, observed with appropriate exercises the ninety-sixth anniversary of the founding of the order. The Independent Order of Odd Fellows was originated in Baltimore, Md., and now has lodges in all parts of the world.

There are nearly 40,000 members of the order in Georgia, of which 3,500 are in Atlanta, where there are eleven lodges.

Besides the customary exercises, conducted by officers of the several lodges, addresses were made by Dr. L. B. Clarke, past grand master, and Rev. Fred A. Lane, also a past grand master.

The Odd Fellows were in full regalia, and marched to the church after gathering in a body on Alabama street. Many of their friends and members of their families were present to hear the beautiful and impressive service, and learn more of Odd Fellowship, what it stands for and what it has accomplished.

Officers of local lodges who participated in the ceremonies were the following:

Lodge Grand M. C. Strickland, past grand Piedmont lodge, No. 130; Vice Grand Gordon Mitchell, past grand Hermon lodge, No. 55; Secretary Charles Kimball, past grand Fulton lodge, No. 32; Treasurer H. Rev. George Buford Installed as Pastor Of Moore Memorial

Rev. George R. Buford was installed with impressive ceremonies as pastor of the Moore Memorial church at the church Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock.

The ceremonies were presided over by Dr. A. A. Little, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian church. The charge to the pastor was delivered by Dr. Dunbar Ogden, pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, and the charge to the congregation was delivered by Dr. J. S. Lyons, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, who also preached the installation sermon. This sermon was to have been preached by Dr. W. E. Hill, of the West End church, but Dr. Hill became ill and was advised by his physician not to undertake the sermon.

The prayer of installation was offered by Dr. A. R. Holderby, pastor emeritus of the church.

Dr. Buford came to Atlanta from Kentucky, and had been for some time assistant to Dr. Ogden at the Central Presbyterian church.

A large congregation attended the exercises.

Council Passes Today On Veto of Purchasing Department Amendment

In the meeting this afternoon of the general council, interest centers in the veto message of the mayor on the ordinance recently passed revising the city purchasing department. The mayor placed a double veto on the measure, first as a councilmanic paper and next as an aldermanic paper. Advocates of the measure claim that it is a general council paper.

An effort will be made to override the mayor, but his supporters are confident that he will be sustained. They are certain of seven votes in council, and believe the necessary eighth vote can be mustered from the thirteen remaining.

The question of whether or not Councilman C. C. Mason is eligible to vote will also be raised. It is the contention of some that he was on the Jeffries ticket, elected Friday, and automatically created a vacancy in council when the result of the election was declared Saturday at noon. Others contend that he will merely be an appointee of Ordinary Jeffries, and that this formal appointment has not yet taken place.

Dempsey Produced "Madame Sans-Gene" In Light Opera Form

Michael Dempsey, theatrical manager of London and a former Atlantan, came from Nashville especially to witness the production of "Madame Sans-Gene" at the Auditorium, Saturday evening. Mr. Dempsey was delighted with the rendition of this opera here, and stated that it reflected credit upon all concerned.

"Twelve years ago he produced "Madame Sans-Gene" in light opera form at the Lyric theater, London, under the title of the "Duchess of Dantzic." The well-known English singer, Miss Evie Greene, took the title role, and the late Denis O'Sullivan, the American baritone, appeared as Marshall Le Febre. Mr. Dempsey is stopping at the Ansley hotel.

—"And you must take Sanatogen regularly for several weeks"

THERE is a reason for this urgent advice. Physicians know that Sanatogen supplies the real needs of a starved, overwrought nervous system—that it is a scientific combination of albumen and organic phosphorus eagerly absorbed by the hungry tissues and possessing unique tonic and reconstructive qualities. They also know from their own observation its revivifying action upon persons whose nervous strength had been undermined by overwork, worry or disease—how it has infused renewed energy, life and elasticity into starved nerves—how it has regenerated the appetite, digestion and helped revitalize the whole system.

But no less impressive than the commendatory letters from 21,000 physicians, is the enthusiastic testimony of the men and women in the forefront of human endeavor, statesmen, prelates, authors, lawyers, who have written above their own signatures of the wonderful benefits received from Sanatogen. That is why we ask you earnestly to get acquainted with Sanatogen.

Sanatogen is sold in three sizes, from $1.00 up.

Prof. C. A. Ewald, of Berlin University, Doctor honoris causa University of Maryland, states in his contribution on "Dyspepsia-Insulin":

"I can say that I have used Sanatogen in a great number of cases (that is, in those disturbances of metabolism which were mainly of a nervous or neurasthenic origin) and have obtained excellent results."

Prof. Thomas B. Stillman, M.S., Ph.D., the well-known research chemist of Stevens Institute, writes:

"The chemical union of the constituents of Sanatogen is a true one, representative of the highest skill in the formation of a product containing phosphorus in the organic phosphate condition, and so combined that digestion and assimilation of Sanatogen are rendered complete with the greatest ease."

Prof. C. Von Noorden, of Vienna University, writes: "Sanatogen is of especial value in various forms of neurasthenia and general debility. It is an excellent albuminous preparation."

Dr. Ernest Ott, Late King Edward's physician, Marienbad, writes: "I have been using Sanatogen for a number of years in my practice with excellent results. These results have been notably good in the case of elderly people when it was desirable to build up the strength, to stimulate bodily functions, and to improve the circulation of the blood."

Sir Gilbert Parker, M.P., the eminent novelist-statesman, writes from London: "Sanatogen is to my mind a true food-tonic, feeding the nerves, increasing the energy, and giving fresh vigor to the overworked body and mind."

GROWTH OF THE NAVY.

Splendid showing as to the growth of the American navy and its general efficiency and preparedness is made in a letter addressed by Secretary Josephus Daniels to President Harry A. Garfield, of Williams college, replying to a request for information which the latter sought in order to combat charges by Representative Gardner, of Massachusetts, that the navy of the United States is at present unprepared for military emergencies.

Secretary Daniels shows, through data as complete as he is permitted to make it under naval regulations, that the American navy has not only grown more rapidly in point of equipment than under the preceding administration, but that for the first time in many years it is now manned to its full quota of officers and men, who are maintaining a high state of efficiency through almost constant practice; and he further points out how this growth has been effected at a saving of many millions to the government as compared with former naval expenditures.

Figures giving the present general status and indicating naval growth the past two years are given by Secretary Daniels as follows:

> There are now in active service, fully commissioned: 225 vessels of all characters, which is 36 more than were fully commissioned when I became secretary. There are also 54 vessels of various types in reserve and in ordinary, unconditionally available for rendering service in war. We have under construction and authorized 77 vessels (9 dreadnaughts, 23 destroyers, 38 submarines and 7 auxiliaries) as compared with 53 (5 dreadnaughts, 14 destroyers, 23 submarines, 3 gunboats and 5 auxiliaries) which were under construction on March 1, 1913.

Regarding the present personnel of the navy, which has been materially increased the last year, and is now recruited to maximum strength, Secretary Daniels says:

> The personnel of the navy is at present composed of 4,355 line, staff and warrant officers, and 58,171 enlisted men. Increases in the number of officers are dependent almost entirely upon the output of the Naval academy, admission to which is restricted by statute. The number of enlisted men also is restricted, and the navy is today recruited to the maximum strength allowed. There are now with the colors 3,824 more men than vessels of 17 per cent—than were on March 1, 1914.

It is strictly inhibited to make public the quantity of ammunition, mines, torpedoes or other war material on hand—a rule observed by every nation. Secretary Daniels points out, however, that the number of mines on hand has been increased 244 per cent and the number of torpedoes 90 per cent. Through manufacture at government stations the price of torpedoes has been reduced approximately 25 per cent, and a correspondingly large saving has been effected in securing a supply of mines.

The bureau of ordnance, says the secretary, has perfected a 14-inch gun that will shoot farther and straighter and hit harder than any gun now in use or known to be designed by any foreign country. Capacity of government powder manufactories has been practically doubled. Additional large investments have been made in air craft, and this arm of the service is being rapidly perfected. It was upon Secretary Daniels' recommendation that the sixty-third congress authorized three seagoing submarines and twenty-three submarines of the type that has proven so destructive in the present war in Europe. This is more than double the number of submarines authorized during the same length of time under the Taft administration. As to navy efficiency in respect to war vessels of the larger type, Secretary Daniels makes this interesting statement:

> During the last two years of the Taft administration, congress authorized the construction of four battleships, at a cost about $13,000,000 each. During the first two years of the Wilson administration, upon my recommendation, congress authorized the construction of five dreadnaughts to cost about $14,000,000 each. Stated in dollars, the Wilson administration, in its first two years, authorized seventy million dollars to be spent on the chief fighting force of the navy, as against twenty-six million authorized during the last two years of Taft; stated in numbers, it authorized five dreadnaughts instead of two, and stated in effectiveness, the five dreadnaughts authorized under Wilson will mount 36 more 14-inch guns than the two authorized under Mr. Taft.

Under a policy which gives them every latitude in the expression of opinion, it is stated there is not an officer in the navy who commands a ship today but will say his vessel is as good or better than two years ago, and that his men are just as efficient, loyal and sober. Fleet evolutions and target practice are dealt with to show that the actual work which makes for preparedness is at no point permitted to lag; and the recent work of the navy at Vera Cruz, Mexico, is cited to show how well it is equipped for action when called into practical service. This emergency experience, Secretary Daniels says, was of far greater value in one important respect than the well-planned routine, because it gave a demonstration of the readiness of the navy in every department. It is noted that regular maneuvers and target practice were kept up by alternate divisions of the fleet while on duty in Mexican waters.

Increased enlistments have enabled the navy department to commission fully twenty submarines, four battleships, four destroyers, six gunboats, six cruisers and three monitors, increasing the number within two years by forty-one. Incident to this, the secretary says:

> I regard this as a great achievement, particularly since the navy has not formerly been able to secure enough men to fill the quota. It has been secured, too, without letting down the standard for admission, which has been maintained, and even raised. For every recruit accepted, five were rejected because they did not come up to our high standard.

Increased enlistments are attributed to a more liberal policy within the department, especially with regard to promotion, under which it has been demonstrated that it is far easier for capable men to get forward to higher positions than it has been under any preceding administration. Secretary Daniels makes this interesting statement relative to part of the economy effected:

> All this unprecedented increase in the navy has been secured, too, without large increase in appropriations. How? By avoiding unnecessary expenditure ashore, by reducing the cost of work ashore while maintaining its quality and reducing appropriations for enlargement of shore stations, by securing real economy, and by economy. During the four years of Taft, $21,925,672 was appropriated by congress for the public works alone of shore stations. Two naval bills have been passed by the present administration, and they carry together, for the public works of shore stations, a total of $3,920,880. We have greatly reduced expenditures ashore and greatly increased them afloat and the above figures attest the change for the better.

Secretary Daniels explained his detailed statement upon the ground that within the last two years there has been more "wise and progressive naval legislation and more practical achievement" than in any previous like period; and, secondly:

> Because certain persons, ignorant of their ignorance, and for selfish partisan reasons, have busied themselves with misrepresenting the true condition of the navy, thereby causing some good people to fear that the navy is not now, as in the past, the strong effective right arm of the republic. All who would learn the truth may be assured that the navy of 1915 is larger, better equipped and in better condition than in any previous year, and that the fleet is becoming more efficient with every passing month. We shall take leave to be strong upon the sea in the future as in the past," declared President Wilson in his message to congress, and in the interest of the self-respecting peace, which is the only peace worth preparing for, it is devoutly to be hoped that this strength may not be questioned by others or endangered from within.

Secretary Daniels' letter makes complete and effective answer to his critics. It not only indicates that American naval needs are well supplied, but that this branch of the service has kept well up with modern progress. It furnishes interesting information to the public regarding the department and its capabilities—information which must be both satisfying and convincing.

MARY ANTIN.

On "the nick o' time" comes Mary Antin, lecturing here the evening of May 6, on "The Public School the Test of American Faith." She is the woman who is said to more clearly express real patriotism in what she says and writes than has any writer of the time. She is a Russian Jewess, who, sixteen years after she came to this country on an emigrant ship, wrote that marvelous book, describing this country and its ideals, patriotic and governmental, as "The Promised Land"—the title of the book.

Upon the sound democracy of our institutions she teaches our progress is based, and through the public school system she believes rests the destiny of the nation. It was in the public schools of Boston she discovered the ideal relation of the school to the state; the non-sectarianism of the institution; therefore, the protection given the child in his politics, his religion, his every interest. Mary Antin's writings and lectures contain a message which not only welcomes the alien and gives him faith in the "Promised Land," but makes to blush the native American who has been indifferent to the great principles upon which his national life is planned. She questions a patriotism that does not take the active, practical turn of daily application, in raising high and sustaining the standards of American institutions.

Mary Antin comes here from a survey of the public institutions of the northwest and those of the Pacific coast. Her lecture will be at the Atlanta theater under the auspices of the Atlanta branch of the Council of Jewish Women.

She is an able speaker, and has all the charm with which nature can endow the woman who studies and learns but to share her gifts with others.

She has made an especial study of the public school systems in their relation to national efficiency, a knowledge of which every citizen of Atlanta should strive to acquire in this crucial time in the life of Atlanta's public school system.

By the way they are announcing that they will not be candidates for president one would think some little work is attached to the office.

That would be all right, but for the fact that the manager don't know how to advertise us—the blamed hair-dye acts so contrary!"

OSTRICH TICKS TO DEATH.

(Pittsburg Dispatch to The New York Herald.)

"Pete," the official ostrich at the Annex hotel, has eaten the enemy and he is dead. At two minutes after 2 Friday he did four steps of hesitation, fell into a slow Castle Walk, gasped twice, ticked a couple of hundred times and uttered his dying squawk. He had eaten a watch and chain and simply couldn't get away with it.

Mr. Fred Kloos, manager of the hotel, had a friend, he thought, in Austria, until eight months ago when "Pete" was shipped to him c.o.d. as a present. That settled the friendship, but "Pete" himself had such a happy twinkle in his eye when he arrived that I have the heart to collect the steaks he was wearing. He determined to keep him as a pet and managed to do so for eight months.

Friday Mr. Kloos was at work on an automobile in the rear of the hotel and he was bending over constantly; he carefully removed his timepiece, chain and charm, all of heavy gold and sufficient to sink any ostrich that ever wiggled a plume. He placed the parts on the tail and said "Pete," who didn't know a thing about the Flivver car, but was very anxious to, wandered up and took a look. The next Mr. Kloos saw of "Pete" he had left his mouth in a pile of carpets and was holding one leg skyward as a sort of an Australian S. O. S. The jewelry was gone.

All hands were piped to the backyard and stood by as "Pete" came to his untimely end.

The watch, still going, was salvaged.

WAR SHATTERS GRAMMAR.

(From The London Globe.)

Language, like almost everything else, is unable to escape from being conditioned and modified by war. Half our best metaphors are taken from war as it used to be, and we still talk of nations "taking the sword," though that is just what they never do, when "moving the howitzer would be really more appropriate. Modern artillery has forced us to make a verb out of a noun and to permit our gunners to "shell" a place in defiance of all conceivable rules of grammar. We have forced "offensive" and "objective" to do duty as nouns in spite of the fact that they are plain and indubitable adjectives, and we freely "bombard" though it would be quite as reasonable for a pillow fighter to say he "pillowed."

Perhaps the most curious thing in this connection is the way in which we have been driven back upon the old verb "flee." Before the era of the Zeppelin and the aeroplane we should certainly have said "the German fleet 'flies' before the British;" now we say it "flee," because "flying" seems to connote motion above the surface of the earth. There are a hundred subtle differences of this sort to which war has impelled us, and from which the most pedantic purist is totally unable to escape.

SPRING FEELING.

This year the roses seem to grow
More like they was a-young as I do,
And this year the warm April breeze
Seems to have passed old apple trees
All white and pink with full blooms,
And the air seems to hold perfumes
Such as the breezes blew about
In the old days when school let out;
And Helen Nine sent to me
Last night a clover chain which she
Had woven for me. A caress
And all the glad Spring's tenderness,
And all the songs birds ever sung
Seemed in it, and to make me young.

Not that I ever shall be old:
Not while the world is blue and gold.
And fields are green and clover-rare white,
And children run in a night
To clamber up onto my knee.
With all that children know of glee,
To hear and feel their laughter,
And reach their little arms to fold
Me in a baby-sweet embrace.
And sit there with me face to face.
My soul is as forever young
As the last song the mocker sung;
And it seems like this time in spring,
I'm thanking God for everything.

THE ZEPPELIN GOAL OF CONQUEST.

(From The Wall Street Journal.)

London, the great, is the goal which the captain of every Zeppelin every U boat and every other Teuton, has set his heart and eyes, is truly the hub of an empire whose center for its very bigness never ceases to attract the attention of the lover of numbers. But which of the five or more Londons do you mean? There is London, which has one of the oldest courts of law in the world, is the city of London, whose population is diminishing, and has now less than 20,000 people. Outside of it is ecclesiastical London, diocesan London, so to speak, over which the bishop rules. Then comes the county of London, with its 4,521,685 people in it, against the total of 3,811,827 persons in the bishopric. In the next outer limit, the criminal court district, there are 6,610,031 souls. That makes the concentric Londons whose radius is tethered at Charing Cross. But out and beyond that lie those rapidly growing suburban towns whose location the inner London has not only overtaken but is helping to fill up with astonishing rapidity. Greater London has an area of 693 square miles and a circuit of 15 miles. This outer rim has 7,730,602 persons making, with those within, a grand total of 7,254,893.

COLD STORAGE A BLESSING.

(From The Philadelphia Ledger.)

Those poached eggs which you will have for your breakfast next Christmas morning went into the cold storage house yesterday. And you are lucky that somebody is having a couple for you.

Our industrious hens are now producing twice as many eggs every day as we care to eat. Months before December comes they will have gone upon their prolonged vacation.

Without cold storage those two eggs for your Christmas breakfast would cost us much as you will pay for them. A solution of ammonia pumped through pipes in storage rooms does for you what the hen herself cannot do—distributes a supply of good eggs evenly throughout the whole year.

We talk foolishly about cold storage as if it were a menace instead of one of the genuine blessings of a scientific age.

AN IMAGINATIVE PLUMBER.

(From The Philadelphia Telegraph.)

Recently during a voyage to England the passengers of a big liner were treated to the remarkable sight of a spouting whale. Everybody, of course, was greatly interested, but one man in particular almost went into rapture.

"Say, Bill," remarked a passenger, addressing an acquaintance, "wonder who the fellow is who is going daffy over the whale?"

"His name is Smith," answered the other. "He is a plumber in a big eastern city."

"I see," returned the first, musingly, "but why should he be so enraptured?"

"Nothing could be plainer," smiled the second. "He imagines that every spout of the whale is a busted water pipe."

SUN SPOTS AND WIRELESS.

MAMMOTH EAGLE KILLED.

(From The Dublin Progress.)

Ollie Wilhite, of this city, exhibited to The Progress Wednesday a mammoth Mexican eagle which he had shot that morning at the Wasson ranch, 15 miles south of town. The immense bird measured 7 feet from tip to tip of wings, and must have weighed as much as forty pounds. The immense claws very much resemble four cotton hooks on each foot, and the bird was in all respects a mammoth one. Mr. Wilhite says it had been observed in the locality of the ranch for three or four weeks, and that Wednesday morning he was in sight on a large tree and brought the magnificent specimen down with a charge of No. 5 shot from a shotgun.

ONE IN TEN INSANE.

(From The New York World.)

Are you one of the ten? Or are you sure that you are quite sane? In dividing the insane into three kinds—idiots, imbeciles and abnormal persons who are not dangerous—Inspector Frank R. Johnstone, of the Vineland (N. J.) asylum, says that 10 out of every 100 persons who at any moment may be walking on the street "properly are to be put under the latter classification."

This is an alarming statement to throw into any gathering of respectable people. Of course, it is a thoroughly scientific statement. It must be, in view of the fact. But it is disquieting to know that if you go to a small dinner party of friends it may be the host at the head of the table who is of unsound mind, or the lady at his right or the lady at his left. How are you to tell after leaving home in the morning, as you count the persons you meet, whether it is your neighbor, the janitor's wife, the street sweeper, the shopkeeper at his door, the newsboy on the corner or the ticket chopper in the subway who is mentally deranged, or whether they all suspect you? At your office you may be surrounded with persons in various stages of mild insanity and never suspected it. You have only to count them to be certain of the fact. The rule is one in ten, and not being of a scientific turn, you are free to make your choice.

FURTHER DECADENCE NOTED.

(From The Dallas Morning News.)

Of course "canned music" has not supplanted finger-made music; but it must be admitted that there are these days fewer proposals of marriage on piano stools than there have ever been before. They have fallen off 77 per cent in seven years. In former times, when wakeful mother heard the desperate love music stop suddenly in the parlor, and the old piano begin to respond fitfully to the dainty touches of only one little hand, she understood that right then and there it was up to daughter to decide just what was going to happen to Willie.

WASH DAY

By GEORGE FITCH.
Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

Wash day is another of the grand old American institutions which is being badly dented by the relentless hoof of progress.

It was once a solemn and alarming institution half way between a volcano and a famine. Clouds of steam rolled up from the basement into the stricken house. The rough grating sound of knuckles being worn off on the washboard and the low, strangling murmur of the mother, trying to improve three children with her mouth full of clothes pins brought sadness to father as he sat at the dinner table eating a cold potato of yesterday's publication and sustaining life with the thought that tomorrow would be ironing day and that if he wanted any dinner he could fry himself an egg.

Those were grand old times, but they are rapidly passing away. Wash day is now no more serious than an ordinary attack of measles in the family. Nowadays mother stuffs the washing machine full of dirty clothes on Monday, lets it wring them and irons them—and if it tears any of them in the process it turns the sewing machine until mother sews them up.

Henry Ford is one of the world's greatest washerwomen, too. The number of laundresses who call for the clothes in an automobile is growing each month by leaps and bounds.

The modern hired girl does not ask "How many in the family," she asks: "Have you a washing machine that will turn on with a switch?" And nowadays the young man who pulls a diamond ring from his pocket and asks with a young lady's trudge with him through life is giving way to the future husband who pulls the ground plan of a downstairs laundry on his frail young sweetheart, and asks her if she thinks she loves him enough to hang out the clothes if the local electric light trust or water company has to go.

The modern hired girl does not ask how many in the family, please!

One reason why woman is demanding the vote with more and more fury is because she isn't so extinct on Tuesdays as she used to be when day was a gymnasium with turkish bath attachments.

RIPPLING RHYMES

By WALT MASON.

WILLARD OF KANSAS.

Let's sing a few stanzas of Willard of Kansas, while people will list to the song, of Willard, the Milo, from barnyard and silo, of Willard the gentle and strong. The White Race was growing in gloom, dumbly hoping that someone with weakness for gore, would take up its quarrel and bring back the laurel that Johnsing triumphantly bore. And he was feeding the porkers and weeding the corn rows and earning his fare, when quivering over the wheat and the clover there came our loud wail of despair. "Jess," said the giant, all calm, self-reliant, "I'll slope from this restful scene, until I have swatted Jack Johnson and pot-hunter Gunns and the rest of long Jess'." So, tanned, gingham-shirted, the plow he deserted, and studied the use of his dukes; and critics who saw him were quick to outface him and brand him the cheapest of flukes. The prize he was after, nor Joshing or laughter could take his bright eyes from the bays, and we who did score him are hoping he'll come in and sending his paens of praise. Oh, Willard of Kansas, from both the Nyansas away to the suburbs of Troy, the White Race is bringing its homage and singing the praise of the Bold Farmer Boy!

The Holland Letter

Four years ago there were assembled at Atlanta, Ga., many men of influence in industry, commerce, transportation and agriculture in the southern states, and they were of an organization which was then and is now known as the Southern Commercial Congress. The name suggests fairly well the purposes of the organization, and in no small measure the general business activity which has recently been so distinguished a feature of progress in the southern states was influenced by this organization.

The gathering at Atlanta has become traditional because upon that occasion some addresses were delivered which set men to thinking and which stimulated healthful business action. One of these addresses was delivered by George Westinghouse. It was in fact, the last formal address, as well as one of the few, which Mr. Westinghouse delivered. He then pointed to the stupendous natural resources which exist in all the southern states, and particularly those through which the Appalachian range, or some spur of it, passes. The streams, Mr. Westinghouse said, contain very great power-producing energy which, when properly utilized and converted into electricity, would make it possible for a vast amount of power to be created at a comparatively small cost, with wide distribution.

If Mr. Westinghouse were now living, he would be told, if again he were the guest of the Southern Commercial congress, that the really marvelous strides which have been made in the southern states by which natural energy is being transformed into many thousand horsepower, is captured or is about to be captured and converted into electric energy available for commercial uses.

Mr. Perkins' Industrialism.

Another of the addresses delivered at the Atlanta gathering of the Southern Commercial congress was entitled "Modern Industrialism." The address was written and read by George W. Perkins, and there were at that time, only four years ago, some who heard him or who read the address who wondered whether Mr. Perkins was not becoming much too far when he advocated a policy which implied expansion of nationalism.

Mr. Perkins called attention to the fact that marvels of modern invention have brought the people of the world face to face with new and very great commercial and industrial problems. He spoke of communication by means of intelligible symbols and by the telephone of language practically annihilating time and distance. He told the commercial congress that a corporation is a composite of steam, electricity and men, and while we have learned how to regulate and control steam and electricity, we have not yet learned how to regulate and control corporations. Moreover, at that time, Mr. Perkins said, the managers of the great corporations were just beginning to realize that their corporations are more nearly public institutions than private property. Mr. Perkins' address was a plea in favor of co-operation and it contained the prediction that by and by, when the public fully understands the economic principle which has been developed by wonderful triumphs over the mysteries of nature, so that men can do natural laws to commercial ends, then there will be no longer antagonism between business and the people, but, instead, full and cordial co-operation.

After Four Years.

The annual gathering of the Southern Commercial Congress has been this week in session at Muskogee, Okla. The committee which prepared the program for this meeting was anxious that the addresses should be as memorable as were those which were delivered at Atlanta four years ago. Between 1911 and 1915 there has been significant and far-reaching changes in public opinion respecting business and especially what is called big business. This has been due in part to the lessons of experience and in part to the nation-wide educational campaign in which such men of affairs as Judge Gary, Howard Elliott, James J. Hill, George W. Perkins and others have taken part. The committee some weeks ago invited Mr. Perkins to deliver an address at the meeting of the congress at Muskogee.

If any one is disposed to get a demonstration of the wonderful changes which have taken place since 1911 he will find abundant opportunity in reading the Atlanta address of Mr. Perkins and the address which he delivered at Muskogee this week. If any one is disposed to get a demonstration of the wonderful changes which have taken place since 1911 he will find abundant opportunity in reading the Atlanta address of Mr. Perkins and the address which he delivered at Muskogee this week. The first address is in the form of a theoretical statement; it is a prophecy, it points out the inevitable trend of modern invention and the utilization of invention as well as the triumphs of research by American business men. The address at Muskogee is a vindication of things that were spoken of at Atlanta. Mr. Perkins does not confine himself to generalizations, but points out practical illustrations from actual experience in the United States since 1911 how gradually, but surely, the American people are recognizing the economic principles of these modern times.

Gradually, but surely, the people are understanding, he is convinced, that if we are fully to meet opportunities we must prepare to meet them upon a great scale. That involves what is sometimes called combination and co-operation, which is no more than the application of principles long in use in production, so that great economies can be effected, and by means of great capital it will be possible to mobilize our resources and energies so that we may capture a fair share of the foreign markets. The American people are beginning to understand, according to Mr. Perkins, that had there been ten, or fifteen, or twenty independent corporations instead of one which represented combination and co-operation it would have been impossible for us to have secured the gains in foreign trade for our steel products, or for agricultural implements, which we have secured since the year 1900. It is without precedent in the history of any commercial nation that, while maintaining its pre-eminence as an exporter of foodstuffs and fiber, it has also within ten years increased its exports of manufactured products so that these exports are on a level with the agricultural exports. The money value last year of foodstuffs and fiber exported somewhat in excess of the money value of the exports of foodstuffs and fiber. Yet in 1900, at the time when business men began to recognize the newly developed economic principles, our exports of manufactured products were only one-third of our total exports.

Mr. Perkins' address, which he was ordinarily expected to deliver before the Southern Commercial Congress, is likely to entail as much discussion as did the address which he delivered at Atlanta four years ago.

HOLLAND.

The Kaiser Laughed.

(From The New York Times.)

Among the officers who resembles Kaiser Wilhelm II. is a young captain who has a prodigious talent for imitation.

Some months before the war this captain found himself in a hall of the imperial palace at Potsdam. He was there with others of his friends who were officers, and began his imitation of the Kaiser with extraordinary precision in tone, quality of voice, gesture and appearance. All at once there was a terrible silence. Wilhelm II. had arrived in the hall. The officers saluted respectfully and remained motionless.

"Very well, go on!" said the kaiser, addressing the captain. "I did not know you had this talent."

The officer hesitated a moment, then extending his arm and reproducing the intonation of his sovereign, he cried in a strong voice:

"Captain, you should be chased out of the army, but in consideration of your youth and because I know you to be a worthy and brave soldier, I pardon you."

The kaiser laughed, and the captain was not punished.

GERMANS POISONED BY THEIR OWN GASES

Many of Their Infantry Overcome at Battle of Ypres — Germans Gained Little by Their Rush.

London, May 2.—The Germans used asphyxiating gases, not only on the first day of the battle of Ypres, but repeatedly afterward, and many of their infantry were affected and unable to join in the charges, the British "eye-witness" asserts in his story of the latest stages of the battle.

The turning point in the battle, he says, came on the afternoon of April 26, when, after the Germans had pierced the allied lines near Broodseinde, a strong combined counter-attack by the French and British along the whole front, from Steenstraate to St. Julien, definitely checked the German offensive, relieved the pressure and gained a certain amount of ground.

"During this counter-attack," said the chronicler, "the guns concentrated by both sides on this comparatively narrow front poured in a great volume of fire.

"On the right our infantry stormed German trenches close to St. Julien and in the evening gained the southern outskirts. In the center they captured trenches south of the Bois des Cuisinire, west of St. Julien, and still farther west more trenches were taken. This represented an advance of some 600 or 700 yards, but the gain in ground could not at all points be maintained.

Germans Use Gas Cylinders.

"Opposite St. Julien we fell back and in front of the Bois des Cuisinire and on the left of the line a similar retirement took place.

"The enemy made extensive use of his gas cylinders and machine guns placed in farms and at other vantage points. None the less the situation at nightfall was more satisfactory. We were holding our own and had made some progress. On the right the enemy's attack on the front of Gravenstafel Ridge had been repulsed.

"In the meantime the French had retaken Lizerne and also the trenches around Het Sas had captured some 250 prisoners and made progress all along the west bank of the canal.

"Heavy as our losses were during the day, there is little doubt that the enemy suffered terribly. Both sides were attacking at different points. The fighting was conducted largely in the open and the close formations of the Germans on several occasions presented targets to our artillery which did not fail to seize its opportunities."

The eye-witness describes briefly another counter attack on the 27th, and adds:

"But the situation remained much as it was. The Germans doubtless were much encouraged by their initial success and their previous boldness in attack was now matched by the stubborn manner in which they clung to their positions."

After that the Germans did not interfere with the allies, which, says the chronicler, "was not surprising in view of the fact that they had been fighting for over five days."

Heroic Work by Airmen.

Paying tribute to the work of the aviators, he particularly mentions an unnamed airmen who lost his life in a raid on Thielt.

"The aviator," says the writer, "started on the enterprise alone. At 7,000 feet he glided down to a height of 200 feet and dropped a bomb on the railway junction. His machine was wounded in the thigh.

"Although he might have saved his life by coming down in the enemy's lines, he decided to save his machine, and made for the British lines. In ascending to a height of only 100 feet in order to increase his speed, he continued to fly and again was wounded—this time mortally. He still flew on, however, and went all the way back to his base, where he made his report. He died in a hospital not long afterwards.

Mention is also made of a machine gun detachment who kept their gun in action until all were dead or wounded.

The gun was stationed in an angle of the trench," says the eye-witness. "When the German rush took place one man after another of the detachment was shot, but the gun still continued in action, although five bodies lay around it. When the sixth man took the place of his fallen comrades, of whom one was his brother, the Germans still pressing on, he waited until they were only a few yards away and then poured a stream of bullets on the advancing ranks, which broke and fell back, leaving rows of dead.

"He was then wounded himself."

JAP CABINET COUNCIL ON CHINA'S REFUSAL

Generally Believed in Tokio That Understanding Will Be Reached.

Tokio, May 2.—An extraordinary cabinet council met here this morning to consider China's refusal to accede completely to the demands of Japan.

It is generally believed in Tokio that negotiations between China and Japan have entered a distinctly special stage, as a result of Japan's decision to make important concessions in its demands on China.

Japan, it is learned, has agreed to restore Kiao-Chow to China if China will accept the Japanese amended demands. Japan has abandoned the demand which relates to Chinese police administration and that dealing with armaments is changed by leaving for future consideration whether a Japanese arsenal shall be established in China or whether munitions shall be purchased in Japan. The question of China granting to Japan the right to build railways in southern China has been postponed pending discussions between Japan and the governments of other interested powers.

A Pekin dispatch under date of May 2 said that at the conference in Pekin Saturday the Chinese government definitely had refused to accept some of the clauses embodied in what is known as group V of the Japanese demands. The conference terminated with neither the Japanese nor the Chinese asking for another meeting.

Rights End When War Begins.

(American Review of Reviews.)

Just now England is in quite the same state of mind towards what she regards as the unspeakably wicked Prussians as early in the last century she exhibited towards Napoleon as the exponent of militarism. There is the same determination to crush the German empire that there then was to destroy that of Napoleon. There is the same disposition to regard the cause of England as so unassailable in its virtue as to justify a good deal of disregard of the rights of neutrals. But the analogy is not one to be followed too completely. The people of the United States are not feeling themselves affronted in any quarter, are not exasperated, have not suffered any intended injury or wrong from any of the governments at war, have no grievances to avenge, and will not drift into a belligerent attitude merely because of interference with neutral commerce in the British and German waters that are strewn with mines and infested by submarines.

War is so desperate a recourse when the foremost powers of the world are engaged in it that what we call "rights" cease to exist, and nothing is likely to be considered except in terms of war power. Germany's plea for invading Belgium was "necessity." England's plea for interfering with neutral commerce is of exactly the same kind, and is put upon the same ground. Germany did not mean to touch the hair of a single Belgian citizen, nor to take so much as a loaf of bread without paying full value. In the German view, Belgium's vast mistake lay in standing up for "rights" when a great war had broken out, in the presence of which rights disappear because the appeal has been made to force. In its very nature, war is the denial of rights of all kinds, private and public. When two small nations are at war, it is true that the rights of neutrals are respected. But this is not because the neutrals have rights, but because they have power. When, however, great nations are at war, the rights of neutrals are less likely to be regarded, unless the neutrals have both the power and the disposition to translate their rights into terms of force.

SIXTH SEASON OVER, OPERA STARS DEPART

Directors Very Much Gratified at Splendid Patronage at All Performances.

The season's last opera has been sung and the last lilting note has died. The curtain has closed over the fallen villain and triumphant lover. The Metropolitan Opera company has folded its tents like the Arabs and waved its farewell to Atlanta.

And now—Atlanta will rest, and faith, she shall need after the glamor and excitement and delirium of music which characterized the sixth annual season of opera.

Many a faithful alarm clock on Sunday morning roared as any suckling lanta only smiled in the pleasant throes of her musical "hang-over" and felt that she could lie down for an hour or two to dream of nothing less majestic than the stars that sang together in the opera of the world's creation.

The few members of the Metropolitan Opera company, who did not leave Saturday night after the last performance, left Sunday morning. The Auditorium is swept and garnished. All of grand opera except many pleasant memories are gone until next year.

The directors of the Atlanta Music Festival association are much gratified that opera was again made a self-supporting enterprise. In fact, all Atlanta is proud of it. Comments were frequent on Sunday upon the splendid success of this year's opera from every point of view.

It was a great week—one to be proud of and to remember.

LOSES NEW FRIENDS AND HIS MONEY, TOO

One more instance of the confidence man's success in the city was reported to the police Sunday evening when J. W. Toney stated that he had been robbed of $140 by chance acquaintances upon the street Saturday night.

According to his story, he had put his accumulated cash in his pocket and started down Decatur street to view the great black way. After meeting three men, who appeared to be jolly fellows, Toney states that he walked about with them, taking a drink first in one saloon and then another. Later in the night he missed his money, he says, and also his newly-acquired acquaintances. He desires a police probe.

Tammany's Hold on Congress.

When President Wilson controlled the house by a majority of 145, he could laugh at the importunities of Tammany. Its dozen or more votes meant nothing. They might have been cast with the republicans at any time without influencing the result. It was probably because of this fact that Tammany was ignored in the distribution of patronage. Senator O'Gorman, of New York, backed many candidates for office, but none was appointed. John J. Fitzgerald, of Brooklyn, chairman of the powerful appropriations committee, also urged men for office, but was unsuccessful. He finally headed a delegation to the white house to protest against this treatment, arguing to the president that the New York delegation was supporting all administrative measures and should, therefore, be recognized in the distribution of patronage. The president answered pleasantly, but no patronage was forthcoming.

There will be 435 members in the house, distributed among the parties as follows: Democrats, 232; republicans, 190; progressive, 9; prohibition, 1; socialist, 1; independent, 1; vacancy, 1. Thus the democrats have a majority of 29. Fifteen of their votes going to the opposition, conceding that the opposition votes will usually be consolidated, will turn the majority against the democrats. Tammany votes and the votes which can be counted upon to coalesce with them will at any time swing the house against the administration. No longer will the crack of the whip from the white house make the members of the house of representatives jump through a hoop.

AT THE THEATERS

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Forsyth.)

The Great Carter, presenting two elaborate acts in different portions of the program, is one of the Forsyth's headliners this week, coming direct from a triumphant Broadway engagement, where he set New York agape with his baffling feats of mystic science. William Pruette and company of talented singers present "A Holland Romance," a tabloid comic opera. Gus Van and Joe Schenck, Atlanta favorites, also come direct from Broadway with their most entertaining act. Mr. and Mrs. Barry offer that irresistible comedy, "The Rube." The Sully Family, ever popular in Atlanta, present their sensational offering, "Bubbles." And Genevieve Warner, the stage's most versatile girl-virtuoso, will be a rare treat for local music lovers.

"The Woman."

(At the Grand.)

David Blesaco and Jesse Lasky, associates, and two of the biggest factors in the dramatic and picture industry, are pointing with pride to their greatest screen achievement, "The Woman," a stirring five-reel drama adapted from the great stage success by that title. It comes to the Grand theater Monday and Tuesday. Wednesday and Thursday comes the Vitagraph-Selig-Lubin-Essanay release, "The Eagle's Nest," with Edwin Arden, Priscilla Dean, the great Parisian star of Charles Van Loan's noted story, "Little Sunset," and Saturday the massive World production, "Wine and Woman."

The Light of Reason Is Shining

(From Leslie's.)

Dismissed! The light of reason still shines, after all. Never, of the United States district court, doesn't believe in indicting men on suspicion, nor does Judge Newman, of the same corporations without reason. It would seem as if no one could disagree with his decision in dismissing the charge against officers of a wrecking company who had been indicted for alleged criminal violation of the anti-trust law, when he said: "The indictment must be free from ambiguity, uncertainty, and repugnance, and clearly state every ingredient of the offence charged. I do not think it comes within these requirements, and is therefore defective." Good, plain, common sense!

U. S. 14-INCH NAVY GUN EXCELS ANY IN WORLD

Daniels Says it Shoots Further, Straighter and Harder Than Any in Foreign Navies.

Washington, May 2.—Critics who claim the American navy's 14-inch rifles are inferior to the 15-inch British naval gun are answered in a statement issued tonight by Secretary Daniels, declaring that the bureau of ordnance has developed a 14-inch gun "that will shoot farther, shoot straighter and hit harder than any gun now in use or known to be designed by a foreign country.

While conceding that the British battleship Queen Elizabeth's guns throw a larger shell, Mr. Daniels points out that she carries only eight 15-inch rifles, compared with twelve 14-inch weapons on the United States battleship Pennsylvania.

Question of Proper Caliber.

"The question of the proper caliber for the main battery guns of our battleships," says the secretary's statement, "is one that has received the most careful consideration by the bureau of ordnance and the general board.

"There is an axiom with regard to calibers which amounts to this: that a ship should mount the smallest big gun that will pierce the enemy's armor over vitals at the maximum probable fighting range. The 14-inch guns of the Pennsylvania will get through the maximum armor afloat, so far as our knowledge goes, at a range of 12,000 yards. The Queen Elizabeth's 15-inch guns will do little more than that. If our information is correct as to the velocity of the British 15-inch gun, the 14-inch guns of the Pennsylvania will range a little farther than the Queen Elizabeth's 15-inch gun. The flat trajection of the 14-inch gun gives it increased probability of hitting in comparison with the 15-inch gun.

"The Pennsylvania mounts twelve guns to the Queen Elizabeth's eight.

The Pennsylvania and Queen Elizabeth.

"The navy department has built and proved a 16-inch gun superior to both the 15-inch and 14-inch, so far as penetration of armor is concerned. If the Pennsylvania were to be armed with the 16-inch gun she could carry only eight. If we adopted the 15-inch caliber we would have to make a sacrifice in number of guns as great or nearly as great as was done in the design of the Queen Elizabeth.

"Counting volume of fire and probability of hitting, we see that at battle range the number of shots delivered by the Pennsylvania in a given time will exceed those given by the Queen Elizabeth by 70 per cent. No one can doubt the advisability of delivering 17 hits to 10 of the enemy.

"Now, if we compare these guns at range greater than armor-piercing range we find that the Pennsylvania's guns range quite as far, at a maximum, as those of the Queen Elizabeth. Both guns range farther than they would have any hope of hitting a ship."

HUGE DEMONSTRATION IN FAVOR OF PEACE

London, May 2.—Reuter's Amsterdam correspondent says that this year's May day celebration in Amsterdam took the form of a huge peace demonstration by between 30,000 and 40,000 men, women and children. The correspondent adds that in the crowds were several hundred soldiers, many carrying red flags bearing peace inscriptions.

The demonstrators marched through the principal thoroughfares, passed the palace and held a great open air meeting addressed by well-known socialists.

DR. DERNBURG ATTACKED BY THE GERMAN EDITORS

London, May 2.—Dr. Bernhard Dernburg's letter read at a mass meeting in Portland, Maine, April 17, in which the former German colonial secretary said Germany would evacuate the occupied portions of France and Belgium only if the seas be free and Germany also be permitted to expand beyond her frontiers in Europe, has caused considerable discussion in the German newspapers, says a Reuter's Amsterdam dispatch.

The Post, of Berlin, says the letter supplies a "full and final proof of Dr. Dernburg's incapacity as a statesman, and the newspaper characterizes his remarks as a "fine piece of political forgery."

Count Ernst Reventlow, in The Deutsche Tages Zeitung says:

"It is impossible that Dr. Dernburg, without definite instructions from the imperial chancellor, should publicly announce in the United States the German war aims. He should without delay furnish a correction and we cannot doubt that the German government promptly will take all steps to obtain an explanation."

The Vorwaerts considers that Dr. Dernburg said nothing what was justified by the imperial chancellor's speech at the beginning of the war when Von Bethmann-Hollweg said Germany wished to wage only a defensive war.

The Dortmund Arbeiter Zeitung has been placed under a preventive censorship for attacking those who favor the annexation of Belgium.

Farms and Farmers

PROF. R. J. H. DE LOACH, EDITOR

Address all letters for this department to Prof. R. J. H. DeLoach, Experiment, Ga.

The Spring Hay Crop.

Early in the present year a series of articles were written on the general theme of "Growing and Curing Farm Produce in the South." In the series appeared two articles on hay. We now come back to the question of curing spring hay, a question demanding attention here at the Experiment station, no doubt in many other parts of the south.

Our vetch is now in full bloom, and we are beginning to mow it. It made the best crop where the rye was very thin, and where the rye was entirely sown the vetch did very poorly. This is a good lesson for the farmer. When sowing vetch and rye together be sure not to sow more than 25 or 30 pounds of rye to the acre. The vetch germination we have here at this time is vetch and wheat. One of these will produce the best food for live stock. Among other combinations are crimson clover, rye and wheat (a mixture of very poor combination). Wheat and crimson clover, Canada peas and rye, and Canada peas and wheat. The Canada peas were killed by the cold and therefore we could not tell what this combination might have done had the peas held their own.

Curing Spring Hay.

Spring hay is generally easy to cure if cut at the right time and left in the open for a sufficient length of time. Unlike autumn or late summer hay, it is tender and will shed the water with the dew or if it rains a few days time. In the autumn it sometimes takes more than a week to get the moisture to dry out of the peavine hay, because it is tough and fibrous and consist of warm dry weather through which the growing plants pass. It is not generally so with spring hay, which bounds up suddenly during the opening weeks of the spring and is ready to cut before the weather toughens it.

Spring hay should ordinarily look a bright yellowish green, and have a fresh sweet smell and taste. It should be a dark color, which would argue that it was poorly cured and carelessly handled. Different crops will require a little different treatment in curing. Alfalfa crops will cure in two hours in sun, when it is ready to be stored in the barn. If cut in the early afternoon it can be put away that same forenoon as soon as the dew is partially dried off. Vetch and oats, oats and wheat or vetch and rye require more curing or it will not keep when stored in the barn. It will be best ready for storing till the third or fourth day after cutting, and even then it will likely have to be ventilated thoroughly when stored.

Hay Caps Are Desirable.

Every farmer should have hay caps made out of some kind of oiled cloth to put over the tops of cocks of hay scattered over the field. They will aid greatly in saving hay in case of rain during the cutting and curing process. After the hay is piled it can be capped in this way and permit the hay to stay in the field for an indefinite length of time, or till the farmer is ready to break it land for another crop. Hay for any reason the hay is damp it can be stored when in the cock without harm to turns and left to cure before storing. Without hay caps one rain will soak full of water and lose much of the strength in the drying.

It will pay to try to keep working up on hay alone. If the winter store of grain is gone, and there is plenty of hay harvested, we should purchase some grain for work stock to bridge over the period till oats is ready to cut. When we begin to feed our new oats horses will thrive on this, and much less grain need be fed them till corn harvesting time in the autumn. Plenty of forage is better for stock, and will keep off trouble and bring health to the animals.

Clean the Haymows.

Our hay lofts should be cleaned thoroughly at least once every year. All the old hay should either be moved and the floors swept, or should be fed out in preference to using the new mown hay. Unless this is done dust will accumulate in such places and soon be a menace to man and to the stock.

Hay should not be fed on the ground to stock. A small rack or holder should be built either in connection with the grain trough or near it, and hay will remain clean till it is all eaten. Horses will waste about one-third when fed, and will have better health when they get it. Strange to say, at least 25 per cent of all the letters that come to this department from Tri-Weekly readers are inquiries about some trouble or sickness among domestic animals. A still greater per cent of such cases of sickness are directly traceable in careless methods of feeding stock. As we have written before, animals can be kept well or killed by poor care and management. If we will only recognize this fact there will be less sickness among our common domestic animals.

THE HOG CHOLERA PROBLEM.

Reports are coming in from many places that hogs are sick and dying. We recommend in such cases that cholera serum be purchased from the Georgia department of agriculture and injected into the hogs as quickly as possible. Not all cases of sickness among swine is cholera, but if there is any doubt in the mind of the owner the best and safest plan is to apply the cholera remedy, which is a good preventive anyway.

This serum is secured by different methods in the different states. In Georgia it is made by the Georgia State College of Agriculture and sold only by the department of agriculture in Atlanta. Every farmer should know exactly where such material can be had, cured, and it will pay to write at once to the state department for the nearest state and find this out. The loss of one hog would cost more than enough serum to have a good chance to cure the cholera.

Some farmers write here and ask if the serum really does any good, while others say that they have a remedy that will cure the cholera. Every state serum is as successful against hog cholera as vaccination is against small pox, and surely everybody knows about this.

The question of using hog cholera serum is no longer a disputed question. It has been proven under science and in practice and no one pretends to doubt it. Wherever tried it has saved over 90 per cent of the hogs treated. In the same communities not 30 per cent were left that were not treated. This is pretty good evidence that the serum is the solution of the hogs. Accept the verdict of science and practice and treat your herd if cholera has been in your community. Do not take the time to write and inquire whether or not you will lose time and perhaps hogs, too, while you wait.

THE HOUSE FLY PROBLEM.

As long as we continue to have house flies we are sure to have epidemics of diphtheria, typhoid fever, common colds and tuberculosis. We and a great many other diseases that space would not permit us to mention here. The house fly is a carrier of disease just as the ox is a carrier of the cars from one place to another. The disease germ is picked up on the flies' feet and taken from one place to another, from one person to another, from one mouth to another and from one person's eyes to another. If flies are in your community they are certain to bring disease from your neighbor into your home. If your neighbor happens to have a contagious disease of any kind.

We would suggest that stables be cleaned out at least every ten days and the manure put into the fields where it belongs. The animals will have a better bed and the manure do better if left in the fields than if left in the stable. The flies will not breed in it if it is scattered in the field or garden and carefully we should think it take in this way to control the fly situation. In some communities the people co-operate in matters of this kind, and to good advantage. Where the people are thickly settled this is indispensable. In the villages and towns some ordinance ought to be passed requiring the people to co-operate in the control of such a deadly enemy as the house fly.

SCOURS IN CALVES (OR WHITE SCOURS).

J. P. C., of Canton, Ga., has a calf that has the scours and he wishes to know what will cure same.

Answered: It should be given two or three ounces of castor oil made into an emulsion with two drams of bicarbonate of potassium and a little water. After this give a half pint of lime water two or three times daily in milk, until the acid condition of the bowels passes away, which will be indicated by the natural color of the feces. Syrup of phosphate of iron in tablespoon doses in milk and flaxseed tea will help to restore normal conditions. In case this mild treatment is not sufficient, give a tablespoonful of tincture of opium and tincture of cetechu at a dose in starch gruel and repeat it every four hours until it is stopped. A substitute for this last is powdered opium 20 grains, acetate of lead 60 grains, mixed in starch gruel, and repeat every four hours until checked. Keep calf in a good warm dry place.

BILLION TRADE BALANCE FOR THE UNITED STATES

Secretary Redfield Discusses Export Movement—Deplores High Ship Rates.

Washington, May 2.—Secretary of Commerce Redfield, in a letter to Chairman William J. Stone, of the senate foreign relations committee, made public today, declared that unless some unforeseen change in the export movement occurs, the balance of trade in favor of the United States will reach, if not exceed, $1,000,000,000 during the current fiscal year.

"This," writes the secretary, "is coincident with the absence of an expenditure on the part of American travelers abroad, estimated not at about $170,000,000 per annum, and also with the absorption by us of large but indeterminate amounts of the American securities owned abroad, by reason of which the interest on the securities is practically all kept at home instead of to others. Not only, therefore, is the favorable balance remarkable in itself, but it is not subject to the offsets that heretofore have been usual."

Mr. Redfield deplores the high ocean transportation rates by which American carriers are prospering at American cost, while we remain in the humiliating position of depending upon foreign ships and foreign crews for much of our own commerce, which we ought to control but do not.

"The export trade this year, during which President Wilson has so ably guided our ship of state amid stormy seas," the secretary declares, "returns and left to cure before storing. Without hay caps one rain will soak full of water and lose much of the strength in the drying.

It will pay to try to keep working up on hay alone. Trade During Past Week Showed Steady Increase

MODERATE DECLINE IN COTTON MARKET

Selling Pressure Not Heavy, However — Decline Based Principally on Favorable Weather Conditions.

New Orleans, May 2.—Cotton last week fell off but a moderate decline under selling, which appeared to be fairly evenly divided between the two accounts. Selling pressure was not heavy, however; long liquidated moderately during the growing movement of only a moderate decrease in acreage, while buyers were carefully cautious on the acreage and what they considered to be favorable weather conditions. At the lowest point of the week 31 points under the last quotations of last week, the loss was at a net loss of 29 to 31 points.

It was mainly a weather market. The sustaining influences were the reports from Texas, showing much crop damage in the overflowed sections, continued complaint of drouth in the central and eastern portions of the belt. On the whole, the public considered the conditions over the belt to be more favorable than otherwise, hence the downward trend of prices.

This week war news may be of more direct influence, as trade may watch Liverpool closely because of Britain's need to be more economical in that market, but neither side will be able to get very far away from crop and weather conditions for the present. May is regarded as a critical month, since its weather is most important to the start of the crop. As the situation over the belt now stands local showers at frequent intervals, with fairly high temperatures, would be ideal. Any continued drouth would cause much complaint because seed would not germinate, but, on the other hand, too much rain would cause foul crops, would prevent cultivation and would tend to reduce the acreage through abandonment of fields. Light showers would work for lower prices, while heavy rains would result in big upturns.

FARMERS OF TIFTON PLAN BROOM FACTORY

Tifton, Ga., May 2.—(Special.)—Tifton is going to have a broom factory this fall. Recently a number of local business men and farmers while in Fitzgerald inspected the plant at that point and had a talk with the owner and he spoke so well that on their return they made preparations to grow broom corn with the intention of putting in a broom factory this fall to care for the product, as broom corn grows most prolifically in this county.

Justice Moriarity Dead.

London, May 2.—(2:09 a. m.)—Right Hon. John Francis Moriarity, justice of appeals in Ireland, is dead. Mr. Moriarity had been solicitor general and also attorney general for Ireland.

German and Austrian trade in India is dead for the time being, and the sentiment of the entire business element in India is so strongly aroused against these countries that any immediate revival of business dealings with them is altogether unlikely for many years to come.

SPECULATIVE TONE IN STOCK DEALINGS

Week Showed Conclusive Evidence of Improved Investment Conditions--War Orders Heavy.

New York, May 2.—Speculative tendencies in stocks revived during the week, but with less general and extensive strength toward the end of that period. War orders were again the main influence, but to this factor was added the conclusive evidence of the improved investment conditions and the benefits thus promised by supplying capital needs.

The most striking example was the consummation of New York Central's plans for financing the purchase of the largest issue of corporate securities ever placed in the United States. Quick sale of Baltimore and Ohio's $40,000,000 of 4½ per cent notes proved the abundant supply to command the market.

Announcement of several long deferred railroad reorganization plans was taken as additional evidence of the increased confidence in credit. The recent course of bank loans also was taken to prove a process of absorption of new bond issues, and the Liberty Bond market revival—the April turnover being the largest for any month since December of 1909—is one of the most significant expressions of financing operations in progress.

Free offerings from abroad of both bonds and stocks were easily absorbed here. These and further exports of gold made little impression on depressed exchange rates, which, as easy negotiations continued for additional foreign credits, gave signs of the successful export demand for all kinds of war materials, including foodstuffs, copper and cotton. Apply to the cereals, in the remarkable strength of the crop prospect was marred by deficient moisture for the winter wheat.

Italy's decision engaged principal interest in foreign affairs, and is looked looking for early development in that quarter.

PRICES ARE LOWER FOR MEAT ANIMALS

Washington, May 2.—Prices of meat animals were lower on April 15 than for two years previous, though they still were higher than in 1911 and 1912, the department of agriculture announced today.

Producers received an average of $6.59 a hundred pounds, compared with $7.40 last year, $7.35 in 1913, $6.30 in 1912 and $6.44 in 1911, the report said.

Farmers sold beef cattle at $5.96 a hundred pounds, a decrease of 44 cents from last year; veal calves, $7.21, a decrease of 5 cents; hogs, $6.48, a decrease of $1.32; lambs, $7.35, an increase of 64 cents; milk cows, $57.77 each, a decrease of $1.82; horses, $131.75 each, a decrease of $6.25.

FRANK PARK TO SPEAK AT TIFT SCHOOL FAIR

Tifton, Ga., May 2.—Congressman Frank Park, of the second district, will be the orator of the day at Tift county's school fair to be held here Wednesday. He will speak at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon at the courthouse.

A large crowd is expected for the fair, as automobiles are being secured to go out in the country and bring the kids in. A big feature for the day will be an automobile ride for all the smaller tots. Fifty cars have been pledged to take the youngsters to ride.

MERCHANT PIG IRON WAS BOUGHT HEAVILY

Southern Furnaces Secured Orders for 135,000 Tons This Week.

New York, May 2.—Sales of merchant pig iron last week were heavy, aggregating approximately 250,000 tons, making the April total 550,000 tons. Southern furnaces secured orders for 135,000 tons, and the total for the month, of which about 100,000 were on specific accounts, and the iron is still carried in storage yards in Alabama. Prices advanced 50 cents to $1 per ton, and in the central west basis sales were increased by $1.50 per ton. Sales of 50,000 tons were sold for export to the Mediterranean. In the territory east of the Alleghenies mountains, foundry sales aggregated about 20,000 tons.

Steel plant equipment buying was again small, including 40,000 tons of rails, of which 20,000 tons for the Minneapolis and St. Louis, 2,000 tons for the Chicago, Indianapolis and Louisville, 2,000 tons girder rails in New York, and 16,000 tons tie rails in the south, mainly for the Southern railway. The "Soo Line" ordered 500 freight cars. Builders now have inquiries for 7,000 cars outside of the Pennsylvania, prospective orders and contracting 2,000 to be built at railroad shops.

Export trade was more active, mistakenly considered by some of war material amounting to 30,000 tons—mainly billets—and inquiries are in the market for 25,000 more billets for Great Britain and France. Russia wants forgings for 7,000 cars, and Japan wants 10,000 cars.

Structural orders have been small since the recent sales of 17,000 tons, noted a week ago. Fabricating shop work for the month will be one-third to less-than in March. The Baltimore and Ohio placed orders for 1,300 tons for grade crossing elimination at Chicago, and the Lehigh Valley closed the Buffalo and Pittsburg contract for 1,500 tons. Ten other railroads are in the market for 1,300 tons, for bridge work. Bids on the reconstruction of the three-track elevated line in Brooklyn go in May 18, calling for 14,000 tons of steel.

NEW CIRCUIT PROPOSED.

To Discuss Matter at Meeting in Fort Valley.

Perry, Ga., May 2.—(Special.)—Judge A. C. Riley has published a call inviting all the clerks and sheriffs of the counties of Crawford, Taylor, Macon, Talbot and Houston for May 14, to meet in Fort Valley, to take up the matter of a new judicial circuit. It is proposed to establish a new circuit of these counties. The question was agitated last year, but deferred until this year, in the event the circuit is created, there will be a large number of applicants for the judgeship. Macon county has fine timber for the position in the person of Colonel Jule Felton, of Montezuma; Houston, in the person of Colonel C. L. Shepard, and others in the other counties.

LABOR IS BOSSED BY ROCKEFELLER

According to Chairman Walsh, of Industrial Commission—Walsh Has Only Pity for John D., Jr.

Cincinnatti, May 2.—Frank P. Walsh, chairman of the Federal Industrial Relations commission, answering the charge of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., that he had made public private correspondence, said today:

"No matter which has to do with breaking down the civic organism of the state or country can be called private."

"If these letters that Mr. Rockefeller has sent to this commission are true," Mr. Walsh continued, "then I have violated no confidence, inasmuch as the facts in these letters show conditions which heretofore have not been given to this commission and which, I believe, are vital to the understanding of the Colorado coal strike situation.

Pity for Young Rockefeller.

"But I have nothing but pity for John D. Rockefeller, Jr. He is representing the greatest fortune in the world, and I want to say in doing this he does not do anything without first getting orders from Tarrytown. John D. Rockefeller, Sr., is still managing all the mines in Colorado: he is still building up all of his investments the same as he did when building up the Standard Oil company.

"And in this respect I want to say that if this commission did nothing more than open up the doors of twenty-six Broadway it would have justified its existence.

"I believe the fortune of Rockefeller and the Rockefeller industries point the way to the solution of industrial unrest in the country today. I base this conclusion on what the commission has found to be facts. The source of the potential empowering power of the United States is almost entirely invested in New York city, and I might say it is almost subject to the will of one man, and that man is John D. Rockefeller, Sr."

Fixing of Prices in Colorado.

Turning to the Colorado situation, Mr. Walsh said:

"It is a crime in Colorado to fix prices, but in a letter from L. M. Bowers to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., Bowers said:

"The Colorado Fuel and Iron company usually leads in the fixing of prices. Mr. Bowers is now in the east. Watch and see if Mr. Bowers is brought back to Colorado and punished for what is a crime in that state, the fixing of prices.

"A letter that has been sent broadcast is one containing a speech by the Rev. Newell Dwight Hillis, of Brooklyn, part of which says that the Colorado operators were willing to meet with the union and deal with them collectively. This is a falsity that is palpable. Senator Patterson, of Colorado, on the witness stand testified that he had a group of operators and a group of union miner officials in adjoining rooms and that the union miners were ready to meet with the operators, but the latter absolutely refused to meet with the union men."

The Texas Land Situation.

Mr. Walsh then touched upon the Texas land situation. He said in part:

"In Texas conditions are the worst of any, but the information we found is as the people are brighter than any. We received sworn testimony of numerous witnesses that fully corroborated what worked for 50 cents a day and had to pay their own board. At the same time we ascertained that on one ranch alone, the Taft ranch, comprising about 200,000 acres, only 12,000 were being worked. We found in Texas conditions bordering upon serfdom. We found in numerous localities the women and children of Texas are the same conditions that confront the women and children in the cruel, crowded and congested districts of some of our factory towns, plus loneliness and lack of educational facilities."

Mr. Walsh in answering Mr. Rockefeller addressed the People's Power League of Cincinnati.

FLEET BOMBARDS TURKISH FORTS

London, May 3.—2.29 a. m.)—A Mytilene dispatch to The Daily Telegraph says:

The bombardment of the Dardanelles continued Saturday. Reports say that the Queen Elizabeth's guns did much damage to the Turkish trenches.

The town of Dardanelles was badly destroyed.

The forts in the narrows were considerably damaged, but the action of the fleet was hampered by the slow clearing away of which has been made difficult by the mobile Turkish batteries ashore. The concession of Tepeh is expected to enable the allies to place guns which will silence these batteries.

Prosperity Dawns for Alaska.

(From Leslie's.)

At last the resources of Alaska are in a fair way to be opened up. President Wilson and his advisors have decided on the construction government railroad in that much-neglected territory and construction is to commence at once. This road, running from Seward, on Resurrection bay, to Fairbanks, on the Tanana river, a distance of 471 miles, will open up a great empire. Seward, the seaboard terminus of the road, will profit greatly. The news that the town had been selected was received there by cable, and broke up a ball game. The saloons retired the cash registers from business and "set 'em up" to all comers. Real estate prices doubled in five minutes, and the town, which had been filling up with laborers in anticipation of the opening of construction work, took on the aspects of a boom. Many newcomers are living in tents owing to the lack of houses. New stores and restaurants are being opened everywhere.

The government has withdrawn town sites along the route at Ship Creek, Matanuska Junction, in Susitna valley, in the vicinity of Broad pass and on the Nenana river. Some or all of these sites ultimately will be developed into villages. Ship Creek seems the most promising, owing to its having been selected as the shipping point for the Matanuska coal. Near the Tanana river is a large body of high-grade lignite which will probably be largely used in Alaska, but the bituminous coal of Matanuska will be in demand for export. Alaska has suffered greatly because it has not been allowed to develop its coal, having been compelled to get its supply from the states at enormous prices. Alaskans and the people of the Pacific coast states are now looking forward to a more liberal policy and foresee an era of great prosperity.

Britain Goes Slow on Prohibition.

(Charlton Bates Strayer in Leslie's.)

The British cabinet passes over to the representatives of the people in parliament the settlement of the drink problem which has vexed king, Kitchener and cabinet for weeks. The czar abolished vodka by imperial edict, and the French government did away with absinthe in a summary manner. The Englishman, however, has been accustomed for centuries to decide such matters for himself, and the cabinet will put the matter up to the people. At this writing the movement gives promise of including the following restrictive measures: Local option prohibiting manufacture and sale of all spirituous liquors; the reduction of alcoholic strength of beer; shortened hours of sale and the closing down of public houses in the immediate vicinity of factories and mines; and compensation for liquor interests adversely affected. In the campaign for national prohibition Sir Henry Edward Randall, chairman of the Business Men's Campaign for Prohibition, has cabled America's unique evangelist—the Rev. Billy Sunday—to come over and lead the movement.

How Jay Gould Got Hit.

(Jasper in Leslie's.)

Always after a prolonged period of depression and liquidation, chances favor a rise rather than a further decline. No one knows how far a bull movement will go when the rise begins. The worst panic we have ever had, at least in my memory, was that in 1873, after the Jay Cooke failure. It left the leaders in Wall street heavily encumbered with securities. The latter declined to unparalleled figures. A comparison between the prices then and now would be amazing.

At that time Jay Gould was one of the leaders of Wall street. He was loaded with securities. When the stock market began to revive in 1877, he was only too glad, after it had advanced 20 points, to unload. That seemed to be as far as the advance could go, in the judgment of this astute and able trader, and he proceeded to sell the market short. Still it went up until it had gone 20 points still higher, involving heavy losses to the short sellers.

Then Gould made up his mind that the market was in for a strong bull movement and he proceeded to load up with the choicest securities, which were then the railways. He held them until the rise culminated and took a splendid profit, one of the largest taken by any leader on the street.

Bull movements that endure are those that follow long periods of depression. It is true that prices are not as low now as they were after the panic of 1873, for holders, large and small, are more inclined to look upon their holdings in the light of investments and to retain them as long as they are able to do so. Probably ten times as many persons are investing in stocks and bonds now as in 1873.

Pat Whelan, the new lodger, was engaged lacing his boots in the kitchen. His landlady, standing near, remarked: "Pat, would you like an egg for breakfast?" "Faith, ma'am," replied Pat, grimly, "I heard of a man who ate two and he is alive yet."—Toledo Blade.

DOC BEIGEL BARRED FROM GREAT BRITAIN

New York, May 2.—Henry Beigel, widely-known sporting character, known as "Doc" Beigel, who was deported from England under the defense of the realm act, arrived here today from Liverpool.

Beigel said he was arrested in London on December 2 and held in jail for two weeks. On April 14 he again was arrested and held eight days. Then he was deported as an undesirable alien.

"So far as I can see," said Beigel, "my only offense was the fear on the part of Great Britain that I might also sell war material to the enemy. When I was first arrested I had just closed a contract with Russia for 300 motor chassis.

"I was born in Germany, but came to the United States with my parents when I was 2 years old and became a naturalized citizen."

LOSSES OF AUSTRALIANS HEAVY AT DARDANELLES

Melbourne, Australia, May 3.—The suspense of the past two days concerning the fighting of the Australasian troops on the Gallipoli peninsula has been lifted somewhat by publication of the first list of casualties. From the proportion of officers killed and wounded the losses of the Australasians apparently were severe.

News of the fighting in Turkey and the movement of troops in Sydney have greatly stirred recruiting.

AUSTRIAN PRISONER FATALLY WOUNDED

Montreal, May 2.—Major General Sam Hughes, minister of militia, saw an Austrian prisoner fatally wounded by a guard as he tried to escape last night in front of the Windsor station of the Canadian Pacific railroad here. General Hughes told the guard he had done his duty.

The prisoner, Jan Bauzek, was in a party of 100 Austrians being transferred from a detention camp in the city to one at Spirit Lake.

Business Chances in Siberia.

(W. E. Aughinbaugh in Leslie's.)

The United States is nearer to Eastern Siberia than Russia herself. Nature has favored us in this respect. Owing to the water routes to Siberia we are in a position to land our goods in that country cheaper than they can be landed from any European country. The markets are open to us if we go after the business, but neither Russia nor the Siberian will force the trade into our hands. Japan will be our principal competitor and should not be considered seriously, as the things she will supply will be typical national products and will not interfere in the least with our trade.

The natural resources of Siberia in timber, gold, coal, minerals of all kinds, petroleum, as well as its agricultural and cattle-raising possibilities, are practically inexhaustible. Both the people of Siberia and the Russians like us as individuals and as a nation. They regard all of us as mechanical geniuses. The phonograph, the sewing machine, the typewriter, the moving picture, the telephone and the automobile industry in this country have been responsible for this idea. Their greatest requirements are tools, manufacturing machinery, manufactures of articles, cotton, woolens, shoes, hardware and tobacco. It is the desire of these folks ultimately to be able to produce such goods themselves, and they will accomplish their purpose. From peasant to plutocrat, from merchant to millionaire, the Russian and Siberian welcome this opportunity to escape from the commercial bondage in which they many has virtually held them for so many years.

If we go after this trade at once, we can get it and secure a foothold in these lands before either England or France possibly can, owing to the war which is engaging their attention.

BOTH MEXICAN FACTIONS ARE CLAIMING VICTORY

Villa Says He Has Defeated Obregon and Latter Says He Has Beaten Villa.

Washington, May 2.—Both Mexican agencies here were claiming successes today in fighting south of Aguas Calientes, where General Villa has begun a new offensive against General Oregon's Carranza army. All reports indicated severe skirmishes preliminary to the expected battle for supremacy in central Mexico.

The Carranza agency had a Vera Cruz dispatch announcing that Obregon entered Leon yesterday, and had resumed his march northward, while Gonzales had occupied the suburbs of Monterey, and the Zapata forces had been driven back to their base, within 20 miles of Mexico City.

Late tonight, however, the Villa agency received a dispatch from General Villa stating that in the fighting yesterday Obregon forces were driven back to Hacienda de Romita, south of Leon.

"The enemy has lost in these last fights more than 800 dead and many wounded, eight machine guns and much war material," the Villa message adds.

"In the burning of a cartridge house near Trinidad, many Carranzistas perished, among them, it is reported, General Francisco Murguia. We are receiving ammunition in large quantities every day."

San Antonio, Texas, May 2.—Jesus Delgardo, private secretary to General Victoriano Huerta, who arrived in San Antonio yesterday to confer with former Huerta adherents, left today for the west, presumably El Paso, and tonight General Ignacio Bravo and General Eduardo Caus left for New York for a conference with Huerta. Caus formerly was governor of Vera Cruz and Bravo was in command of the Mexico City garrison during the regime of Huerta as provisional president.

Delgardo's mission, according to L. Presara, a former Mexican federal army officer, is to secure for his chief first hand information of conditions in Mexico.

"There is no disputing the fact that General Huerta has thousands of friends who believe that he can bring about peace with less bloodshed and less suffering and more uniting of Mexicans than any other man, Presara said. "He may go to Mexico, and then he may not, but certainly no effort is being made to organize a revolution in America."

Will the Clash Come in June?

(Martin Marshall in Leslie's.)

It is now considered entirely probable that the heaviest military operations in the west will not be undertaken until June. The extent of the war is indicated in the statement published in The Matin, Paris, that the total of the allies' battle fronts is 1,656 miles of which the Russians hold 851 miles, the French 540, the British 31, and the Belgians 17. The Serbians and Montenegrins are fighting along a line which covers 317 miles. The comparatively small extent of the British expedition to France consisted of only about 10,000 men and that the allies' original lines have been maintained, although the British forces in France have been multiplied to, probably, more than 1,000,000 men. These will form part of the reserve strength with which the allies expect to assault Germany when the time is ripe. But the British have not failed to do their share of the fighting, as is shown by the casualty report made in the house of commons which shows the total number of killed, wounded and missing from the beginning of the war until April 11, to be 139,347.

Whatever talk there may be of the prospects of early peace, Lord Kitchener evidently sticks to his original theory that the war is going to be a long one. With 2,000,000 men enlisted, it is announced that a great patriotic campaign is to be opened to obtain more men for Kitchener's army. During a fortnight 1,500 meetings will be held. Many stinging criticisms have been made of the method in which the British government seeks to induce recruiting. The United Kingdom is covered with placards and handbills calling in extravagant terms on all able-bodied men to enlist. These circus methods are certainly incompatible with the dignity of the British government, and it has been repeatedly pointed out that a more liberal censorship of the newspapers would have called forth more recruits than the present system and would have saved much money and some injury to national pride. Under present methods conscription will certainly be necessary if a considerable number of men must still be recruited.

A Joker in the Will.

(From The New York Times.)

The lawyer was drawing up old Furrow's will.

"I hereby bequeath all my property to my wife," dictated the son of the soil. "Got that?"

"Yes," answered the lawyer.

"On condition that she marries again within a year."

The legal light sat back puzzled. "But why?" he asked.

The aged farmed smiled.

"Because," was the reply, "I want somebody to be sorry I died."
